Hospitals Going Broke On BCHIS Financing

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—The board of directors of 430-bed Royal Columbia Hospital said here today unless the hospital receives more financial aid it will have an operating deficit of $200,000 this year. Hospital spokesmen said the hospital's financial position is "worse than ever before" and is "reaching the breaking point."

In a statement the board of directors said the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service must provide more financial aid.

Meanwhile, St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver denied a report that it faces serious financial difficulties because it is not receiving enough money from the hospital insurance service.

A Vancouver paper in a front page story today said St. Paul's owes more than $70,000 and cannot borrow money for a new laundry and laboratory because it cannot get a definite commitment from BCHIS.

The Province said a survey of B.C. hospitals showed some were going steadily into debt because of inadequate BCHIS grants for operating expenses.

At least six hospitals, including Royal Jubilee in Victoria, St. John in Vancouver, War Memorial at Williams Lake, Lady Minto in Ashcroft and Arrow Lakes at Nakusp, were spending equipment replacement allowances to help cover operating debts despite an urgent need for new equipment.

Royal Jubilee Hospital officials were not available today for comment on the reported deficits.

EXPLOSION INJURES PAIR

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Two youths were taken to hospital, one severely burned, after fire apparently exploded out of a wall near a fireplace early today.

Gerry Glowackey was dragged from the burning home by firemen and was in only fair condition with burns. Ross Leonard was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

DEATH, NOT 'PARADISE' MAY BE SAILOR'S FATE

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI)—Hungarian immigrant Andre Yavorscik today stubbornly stuck to a leaky boat in which he is sailing to an "elusive paradise" despite police warnings that he could be sailing to his death.

An RCMP boat drew alongside the rolling, do-it-yourself yacht yesterday and its crew pleaded with Yavorscik to abandon the craft.

But the 45-year-old paradise-seeker who has travelled only 80 miles since leaving Halifax, on Aug. 14 turned a deaf ear to the Mounties' plea.

East, West Close On Arms Study

LONDON (AP)—Communications are flashing between Moscow and the capitals of the three big Western powers on plans for reviving general disarmament talks, diplomatic informants said today.

Through written and oral communications relayed through embassies, the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union are working toward setting up a 10-nation body to seek ways of halting the world arms race.

Thus far, the sources said, responses from the Soviet side are dovetailing with suggestions coming from the Western capitals. East and West would have equal representation in the proposed new negotiating group.

Separate arms studies now are under way or will begin shortly in the capitals of the Western powers.

The informants assumed these would lead to the establishment of a joint Western study group to pool the ideas.

'Thinkers' Ask Probe

PUGWASH, N.S. (UPI)—Twenty-five scientists at an international "thinkers" conference today suggested the establishment of a United Nations scientific commission on biological and chemical warfare.

India Rushes Troops To Red China Border

Ike Opens Talks With Mac

WENDOVER, Eng. (AP)—In the serene peace of the English countryside, President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan turned today to a discussion of Western strategy in cold war negotiations with Russia.

The U.S. leader, preparing for his talks next month with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, arrived shortly after midday for a weekend of conferences at Macmillan's secluded country estate, Chequers.

Crowds greeted his return from an overnight respite with the Royal Family in the Scottish Highlands.

Cheers and cries of "I like Ike" echoed as Eisenhower stepped from an RAF Comet jet airliner at Benson air base—a base he knew well from his days as the Allied commander in wartime.

Eisenhower beamed at the cheering crowd. At the entrance to Chequers a commotion was caused by half a dozen demonstrators of the League of British Empire Loyalists.

Two men and a woman stretched a banner across the road on which was the legend: "The Empire League wants Britain to be independent."

Ike appeared relaxed and rested as he left Balmoral Castle accompanied by Prince Philip on the 50-mile drive to Aberdeen's Dyce Airport, where he boarded the Comet.

He bade a warm farewell to the Queen, clasped her hand for several seconds and spoke rapidly to her, thanking her for her hospitality.

The Queen, Princess Margaret and Prince Charles and Princess Anne waved goodbye until the car disappeared from sight.

Before leaving, Eisenhower spent 10 minutes posing with the Royal Family for photographers on the grounds of the 24,000-acre royal estate.

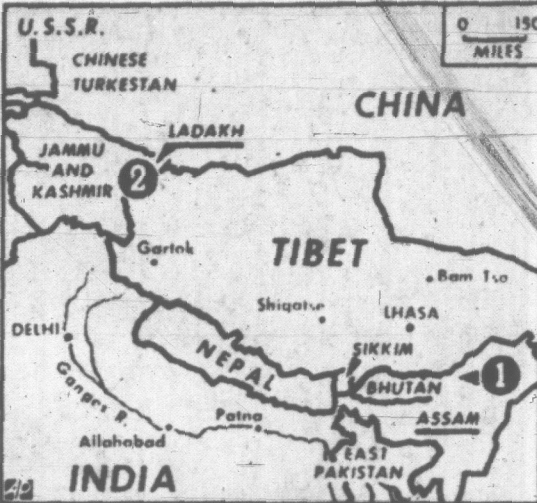

He posed for one shot standing between 10-year-old Prince Charles and nine-year-old Princess Anne.

The president patted Anne's golden curls and asked: "Are you going to learn to cook?"

The princess, wearing the kilt, nodded shyly.

The Queen laughed and said: "I will send you some samples."

"If you don't I will be bombarding you with letters," Eisenhower replied.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We rejoice, O Creator, in the loveliness with which Thou hast filled Thy world, and we pray to be in tune with it all. May the birds give us confidence and freedom from anxiety as their wings bear them upward. May Thy flowers teach us their sweetness, and Thy trees their sturdy strength. We, too, are Thy creatures, Lord, and we lean on Thee for strength. Help us to live this day for Thy glory. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

Orders to Shoot 'If Necessary'

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Indian cabinet has ordered the army to rush troops into duty along the 1,500-mile northern frontier to prevent further crossing of Communist Chinese troops, it was reported authoritatively today.

Indian troops being rushed to the area have been told to shoot at Chinese soldiers if necessary, it was learned.

The government took the action following reports of large concentrations of Chinese troops along the frontier, stretching from Ladakh to the northeast frontier agency area.

Border police were unable to cope with the Communists, who, it was disclosed in parliament Friday, have clashed with Indian forces in eastern Kashmir and the northeast frontier agency over the past two months.

Red troops have been infiltrating and making probes all along the frontier and it was believed the Communists had placed more than 40,000 troops along the border, compared with a mere 2,000 armed Indian border police.

It was reported in Calcutta that Chinese troops were concentrated along the border of Tibet menacing India, Bhutan and Nepal.

The reports, relayed from Shillong, headquarters for India's northeastern frontier agency, said the area is tense.

Nehru Told Parliament of Clashes

Prime Minister Nehru told a shocked parliament in New Delhi Friday that Chinese soldiers had clashed with Indian troops both in eastern Kashmir and in northeast India in July and August.

Government officials said afterward that as far as was known no Chinese troops were on Indian soil at the moment.

In New Delhi, however, it was reported that the army had received orders to dislodge Chinese troops believed still occupying the Longju border outpost four miles inside India's northeast frontier in the Assam area.

Crack Indian troops trained in jungle and mountain fighting had moved into the region and were within two days' march of Longju, the reports said. The Indian force was described as "large," but its exact size was undisclosed.

It was understood Indian military leaders had set up an advance operational command to handle the troop deployment.

Considerable Chinese aerial activity has been noticeable over the border area for the past few days. There were reports the Chinese had dropped paratroopers at their frontier outposts.

It was learned that Air Marshal S. Mukherjee, chief of the air force, had been ordered to cut short a visit to Cairo and return at once.

Indian security forces in Calcutta today tightened their watch on the city's two Chinatowns which comprise the largest Chinese population anywhere in India.

The newspaper Hindustan Standard reported that the Chinese troops were equipped with modern weapons.

"The situation is fast developing into an explosive one," it said.

Unconfirmed reports said some Tibetan refugees who had been used for building Indian roads in the wild northeastern frontier agency this summer had disappeared.

The reports said it now appeared they actually were Communist spies who mixed with bona fide refugees during the flight from Communist oppression in Tibet last spring.

Island Entrants Take PNE Honors

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Duncan family swept a wide range of prizes in sheep classifications at the Pacific National Exhibition's livestock judging today.

R. H. M. and D. J. Shaw took first and third places in the shearing ram division, all first six places in the top ram lamb division, and exhibited both the champion and reserve rams.

Of horses exhibited, Judith L. Grimshaw of Saanichton, showed the best two-year-old stallion foaled in 1957 and the reserve champion male.

CCF Won't 'Water Down' Socialism to Please Labor

WINNIPEG (CP)—CCF Commons Leader Hazen Argue said today he knows of no intention among CCF chiefs to water down their socialist ideas to get support for a new left-of-centre party.

Mr. Argue, who would probably wind up as head of the new party being discussed by the Canadian Labor Congress leadership and the remnants of the CCF, was addressing a political seminar sponsored jointly by the CLC and the CCF.

"No one I know is watering down CCF policy," he said to about 300 delegates.

He added that the CCF is not putting forward the theory of nationalization of industry for nationalization's sake alone but that if it were necessary for the public good, "a larger proportion of monopoly business must be brought under public control."

Mr. Argue said Trans-Canada Air Lines is a good example of the benefits of public ownership.

Discussing the question of farm support for the proposed new party Mr. Argue said:

"I expect that the candidates of the new party will be able to get very considerable support from farmers across Canada. If there were a federal election now, the candidates either of the CCF or the new party would win more support in the four western provinces than all other parties combined."

Talking about suggestions that the congress might be trying to "gobble up" the CCF, Mr. Argue said:

"That's nonsense."

He said he hopes that from the present move for an affiliation between the two bodies there will come "members and at least some of the financial resources" to get labor's message across to the country.

He asked why there have been complaints about the idea of labor members contributing to the financial resources of the proposed new party.

"The back room people for years have been putting money into the other parties."

Deeley Stars For Wolves

LONDON (Reuters)—Two of the giants in the English Soccer League's first division collided head-on today as Arsenal and the defending league champions, Wolverhampton Wanderers, battled to a 3-3 tie before 46,000 fans.

With only the second weekend gone in the new season no first division team now holds a perfect record. All have at least one tie.

Wolverhampton shot into the lead in the first half with a goal by outside-right Mike Lill. Arsenal came charging back in the second half with centre-forward David Herd pouncing in two goals and outside-right Danny Clapton notching a third.

SAVES WOLVES

Outside-left Norman Deeley saved Wolves with two second-half goals, the tying one just five minutes before the end of the game.

The result put Wolves, Blackburn and West Ham at the top of the league standings with five points each. Blackburn drew 2-2 with Nottingham Forest and West Ham defeated Burnley 3-1.

The day's biggest crowd saw Manchester United gain its first points of the season by beating Newcastle 3-2.

Chelsea lost centre-half John Mortimore with a leg injury after 25 minutes and lost 3-1 to Leicester.

Both Fulham and Sheffield Wednesday, newly promoted from the second division, won. Fulham beat Blackpool 1-0 and Sheffield Wednesday upset Manchester City 1-0.

In Scottish soccer, Queen's Park needed only one point to qualify for the quarter-finals of the league cup, but it lost 4-0 to Dundee United.

Canada's North Spaceship Base?

LONDON (Reuters)—The idea of launching a spaceship from a site in the northern territories of Canada should be "carefully examined," the Commonwealth spaceflight symposium was told today.

Ernest Wall, an official of the weapons division of the de Havilland Aircraft Company of Canada, gave three reasons why the northlands would be an ideal location for satellite launching.

The distance from populated centres a near-polar site could be of great importance to astronauts and the intensity of radiation belts decrease considerably near the magnetic poles.

Wall, reading a paper prepared by two members of the Canadian Astronautical Society, Dr. P. Lapp and A. Maine, said:

"Canada is well equipped for participation in a Commonwealth spaceflight program. She has strong and dynamic capabilities in this modern space-age."

"The industry is well suited to contribute in practically any electronic area—especially in communications, tracking and data handling and processing."

The actor arrived Friday accompanied by actress Beverly Aadland. On hand to meet him were Nora Eddington Haymes, second of his three wives, and their daughters, Deldre, 15, and Rory, 13.

Flynn, who has been living apart from his present wife, Patrice Wymore, said he will give her a divorce if she wants one. They have a six-year-old daughter.

Waiting outside for Miss Picard, 26, was her friend, Melvin Berg Schneider. He saw the kisses and took down the men's licence number as they drove off Friday.

Fourteen minutes later police arrested Billie Joe Simon, 30, and Raiford Lee Malone, 24. They were booked on suspicion of robbery.

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y.—Otto Staudke, the 71-year-old bird man from Kansas, ended his war on the Mount Vernon starlings Friday.

For more than a week, Staudke has been invading the starlings' roosting area with his self-made anti-bird contraptions. They consisted of aluminum cymbals which he clapped together as he walked, and a string of metal chimes around his neck.

Most persons agree the starlings have abandoned their roosting spots in the Kingsbridge Gardens section. But they also maintain the birds have merely moved to another part of town.

'Build Markets—Not Pipeline' Borden Probe Tells Oil Firms

Curbs Vetoed 'at This Time'; Industry Given 18 Months

REPORT IN BRIEF

OTTAWA (CP)—The Borden Energy Commission says international oil companies should themselves seek adequate markets in North America for Canada's oil or face Canadian import restrictions.

That policy was recommended to the federal government in the royal commission's final report made public Friday.

On a key issue before it, the six-member commission said that "at this time" the government shouldn't impose restrictions to ensure construction of an oil pipeline from the West to the rich Montreal market. Montreal refineries, with one-third of Canadian refining capacity, now use oil from Venezuela and the Middle East.

Instead, the commission said, the industry should be given 12 to 18 months to show whether it can develop adequate markets for Canadian oil.

The recommended target: Canadian oil production of about 700,000 barrels daily by the end of next year. Average 1958 output was 456,000 barrels daily—only about half of productive capacity.

If the oil companies show this can be done, then it would be "neither necessary nor desirable to take action to secure the Montreal refining area as an outlet for Canadian crude."

The commission, whose first report last Oct. 25 led to establishment of the national energy board to regulate gas and electricity exports, set out this proposed national policy for oil:

1. Export of Canadian oil, without licensing, should be allowed and encouraged.
2. Canadian oil should be used in refinery areas of Canada already accessible through existing pipelines. This would include the Sarnia, Ont., Toronto and Vancouver areas.

'Vigorous and Imaginative Action'

To implement that policy, oil companies should:

1. Act as soon as possible to provide Canadian oil products to replace the equivalent of 50,000 barrels daily now moving into Ontario from Montreal refineries. The Montreal refineries involved have said they plan this switch by 1962.
2. Take "vigorous and imaginative action" to enlarge substantially markets in the United States, on a continuing basis.

The commission's report noted that the six big Montreal refineries are controlled by international oil companies.

In view of this, and the large idle oil capacity in Western Canada in which most of them had substantial ownership,

"these refiners should be prepared to strive assiduously to offset their imports of foreign crude by exports to United States markets."

The commission's final recommendation set out the proposed alternative:

"If government action should become necessary to implement the national policy we have recommended," it said, oil imports—except those of U.S. oil—should be subject to licensing that would shut them out of any Canadian refining area adequately served by Canadian oil.

Trade Minister Churchill, at a press conference, gave no indication of whether the government will adopt the proposed policy.

One Board Member Had 'Reservations'

Commission chairman Henry Borden, Toronto lawyer and president of Canadian National, Light and Power Corporation, told reporters he is "firmly of the belief" that if the government declared such a policy the oil industry would do its best to live up to it.

One member of the six-man commission, Dr. G. E. Britnell of the University of Saskatchewan, wrote a memorandum of reservations.

He said a year or two isn't long enough to test the industry's ability to find new markets. The report, he suggested, would too quickly bring government intervention to meet foreign competition. Further, it took a too gloomy view of the Canadian industry's prospects.

Alberta Backed Western Companies

Chief proponents of the oil line to Montreal have been a group of western producing companies headed by Home Oil Company Limited. The Alberta government backed their stand. Montreal refinery companies opposed the pipeline and argued it would not be economic.

The commission said Canada's ability to secure oil markets in the U.S. would be seriously impaired if the Montreal market were restricted to Canadian oil before the full possibilities of the U.S. market were fully exploited.

It might also prejudice Canada's current position of being exempted from U.S. oil import restrictions, the commission cautioned. And it might jeopardize the development of a continental oil policy. This idea of a continental oil policy crops up repeatedly in the commission's report. It would involve arrangements between Canada and the United States for oil production of both countries to be used in either country in the most efficient manner.

Mr. Borden told reporters he doesn't share Dr. Britnell's view that the report advises too rapid government protection.

On the question of an Alberta-Montreal oil pipeline—a 2,000-mile project which would cost some $400,000,000—the commission said import restrictions would have to be imposed "if it should become advisable to move Canadian crude to Montreal in order to maintain a healthy industry in Canada."

If it were declared to be national policy that Canadian crude should serve Montreal, then any pipeline builders would be protected against foreign competition—provided a national import licensing policy was in effect.

Couple to Celebrate 50th Wedding Day

CHEMUNUS—Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Dwyer, who owned and operated a confectionery store on Maple Street for many years, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday.

An "at home" will be held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. G. Vater, Seaview Street.

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the second and final report of the Borden Royal Commission on Canada's oil industry:

Export of crude oil should be permitted without licence and encouraged as matter of national policy. Pipeline exports now are licensed.

No government action should be taken at this time to lay down Canadian crude at Montreal by pipeline.

The Canadian oil industry should be able to demonstrate in the next 12 to 18 months its ability to locate other Canadian markets or expand U.S. markets before a Montreal pipeline is undertaken.

A period of 12 to 18 months should be sufficient to show whether a desired production level of 700,000 barrels daily can be reached.

National policy should ensure, consistent with Canadian consumer interest, the continued use of Canadian crude oil in domestic refinery areas where such crude can be laid down by existing pipeline.

Oil companies should strive immediately in the Ontario market to displace with Canadian crude products the equivalent of 50,000 barrels daily supplied from Montreal refineries which use imported crude.

Imports of crude oil should be licensed if piping Canadian crude to Montreal becomes national policy, crude oil of U.S. origin being exempt.

The Canadian industry should be able to strike a production level of 700,000 barrels daily by the end of 1960 without access to the Montreal refineries.

Uncertainty and over-production appear likely to affect the international oil industry for some years yet, with any further substantial drop in international prices posing serious trouble for Canada.

Exemption of Canadian crude from U.S. import regulations could be the first step toward developing a continental policy on the commodity.

The National Energy Board should keep under constant review the question of supplying Canadian crude to the Montreal area.

Commission member Dr. G. E. Britnell, in a memorandum of reservations, suggests the oil industry is better off than some parts of the report indicate.

France May End Atom Test Ban With First Bomb

(Times News Services)

GENEVA—Western observers today expressed fear that France's plans to explode its first atomic bomb would precipitate a general resumption of nuclear testing by Russia, the United States and Britain.

Russia Friday agreed to continue its test suspension as long as the West did so.

At first glance this appeared to rule out any nuclear tests for the remainder of the year, since both the United States and Britain, in statements Wednesday and Thursday, promised to extend their own suspensions to Dec. 31.

However, France made no such commitment and apparently was going ahead with plans as soon as development allows.

French officials said in Paris today that France would not consider itself bound to cancel its planned Sahara tests as the result of any Soviet-Anglo-American decision.

The lack of an official government statement on the subject was believed to be the fact that President de Gaulle and President Eisenhower probably will discuss the subject in Paris next week.

The United States, Britain, and the Soviet Union have been negotiating for almost 10 months in Geneva over a treaty for a permanent ban. The talks recessed Wednesday for six weeks with agreement on only minor parts of the treaty.

WEST BLAMED

The Soviet statement Friday night blamed the West for the slowness of the negotiations. It charged that the West advanced "one demand after another, complicating the achievement of agreement."

The Russians said they would carry on with the negotiations, declaring they regarded complete cessation of tests as "an important step toward stopping the nuclear arms race and averting the threat to the life and health of millions of people."

Mr. Jodoin Says No

MR. CLAUDE JODOIN'S EM-phatic opposition to a close tie-up between the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress, which he heads, has apparently killed the possibility of any such merger.

His position reaffirms that taken earlier by one of Canada's labor strongmen, Mr. Frank Hall, CLC vice-president and negotiator for the railway unions.

In their stands against such a marriage Mr. Jodoin and Mr. Hall have shown wisdom that will no doubt be recognized by the unions.

The way is still open, of course, for an individual union to bind itself to the CCF or, indeed, to any party. Such action, however, would ignore the sentiments implicit in the position these leaders have taken.

In actual fact the proposal contained little promise for labor and doubtful merit to the political party which sought votes through a direct affiliation.

Labor has every right to express itself, and the working man in Canada has every right to seek for himself the spokesman he wants to represent him in Parliament. Were he to limit his voice to that of one particular party—through a political merger of his labor organization with it—he would automatically place a restriction on his political freedom.

It has been said before but stands repetition that no political party can succeed in this wide and diverse country if it is based on the support of any one area or any one class.

The CCF record of failure in national elections illustrates that point. While the CCF has succeeded often in having many of its ideas accepted and converted in legislation by the older parties—and in many ways Canada is the better for this influence—it has been unable to assume office at Ottawa itself because its appeal was not broad enough.

Mr. Jodoin says: "The Canadian Labor Congress is a central labor body composed of many unions, some of which will obviously want to exercise their democratic right to abstain from any form of political action. This is a right we intend to protect—and because of this it is quite proper that we as a congress should abstain from any form of political affiliation. At the same time we, as a congress, have straight trade-union functions to perform. We will continue to perform these functions."

This is a sound principle.

Moreover, there are practical reasons why those who have studied the issue—and are not committed to the CCF line of thought—should oppose the merger. Among them is the right of every Canadian to enter the voting booth, mark his ballot in secret and maintain the secrecy of his decision. No proclamation of a merger, were one effected, can guarantee compliance by union members with the political exhortations of a party with which the union may be affiliated.

The formal statement of the president of the Canadian Labor Congress appears to write final to the CCF's hopes of united labor backing in this country.

A Selfish Decision

THE PUBLIC WILL ACCEPT the provincial Government's explanation that due to limitations of the cheque-writing machines it is impossible to deduct both Canada Savings Bonds and PGE bond contributions from provincial civil servants' salary cheques. But they will be less inclined to accept the proposition that a choice must be made at all.

In dropping the annual Canada Savings bond from the payroll deduction plan and substituting instead his PGE issue, Premier Bennett is abandoning a practice that has been in vogue in British Columbia, and across Canada, for a number of years. It was a patriotic gesture by the provincial governments, and by many hundreds of industrial and commercial firms as well, to make it easier for wage-earners to invest in the bonds of their nation and assure the success of the annual issues.

In dropping this arrangement and replacing it with PGE bonds, Mr. Bennett is not putting the province before the nation so much as he is giving his own pet PGE financing scheme priority. As Premier, Finance Minister and president of the PGE, Mr. Bennett has more than a usual interest in the success of his forthcoming loan campaign. If the nine other provinces followed a similar policy a very serious blow would be struck against the financing of the nation. Citizens of this country are Canadians first, and residents of the provinces second.

It is one thing for a provincial government to make the salary cheque deduction system available for a national appeal. It is quite another for it to insist on its installation for a provincial issue. No matter how often Government spokesmen may say there is no obligation on provincial employees to subscribe to the provincial bonds, a taint of compulsion must remain.

This step will not improve relations between Mr. Bennett and the provincial civil servants—nor is it likely to improve very much the chances of selling PGE bonds.

Guns Along the Frontier

PRIME MINISTER NEHRU, THE heir of Mahatma Gandhi, has found it difficult to take a detached and passive view of the reported Chinese incursions on Indian territory along the northern frontier. The Indian army is ready to fight. When Red Chinese recently purged Tibet of revolutionary elements, Mr. Nehru found himself unable to adopt a very active policy in support of his neighbor. He offered asylum to the fleeing Dalai Lama, but preserved a much more even-tempered attitude toward Peking than the circumstances might have invited, particularly in the face of provocative Chinese charges.

Now Communist Chinese patrols are camping on Indian territory, arresting Indian border patrols, and engaging in shooting affrays with Indian troops.

Very obviously the march of Communist imperialism is coming much nearer to neutralist India than it ever has before. It is a comparatively short time since Mr. Khrushchev was being cheered by tens of thousands in the course of a triumphal visit to India, and Mr. Nehru was being similarly acclaimed in Moscow. Now the other face of Communism is being partially presented.

As Mr. Nehru says, there is no indication that the current border fracas will develop into anything more serious. But the fact that Communism in the Far East has reached a point where it can casually risk driving India from neutrality into antagonism, is itself a serious consideration. Communism does not indulge in such moves without a plan and a motive.

Mr. Nehru, whether he realizes it or not, is getting closer to the facts of life.

Writing Maritime History

THE ISLAND TUG AND BARGE Ltd. has again written maritime history on this coast, and, indeed, on the Pacific Ocean with the completion of the Cambrian Salvor's tow of a 30,000 ton battleship from Chile to Japan.

The achievement is a record both in the length of the journey and the size of the craft hauled across the ocean.

This is not the first occasion on which the company's vessels, officers and men have gained distinction in their field. It is, however, a fitting incident to mark the international character of the company and an indication of the competence of the locally owned and based firm.

Much of the credit for the tow goes to the Cambrian Salvor's skipper, a Netherlands, Captain James van Komodo.

The arrival of the craft and her master back at the Victoria base in early October should be marked by some special ceremony—an event which might suitably be sponsored by the city in recognition of the fact that in one department at least the men who go down to the sea in ships from Victoria need bend the knee to no others in their particular business.

Alcohol the Crippler

Alcoholism is one of the most crippling of all our diseases. It is the one disease that affects the whole family.

What are we the public doing about it? Very little so far.

What is the government doing? A large profit is made on liquor revenue. Could we not use a portion of this money to research and see if we can at least help the younger generation to be better citizens by proper education along these lines?

Television has glamorized it very nicely. Families that have the problem find it far from glamorous.

If we can at least educate the young people about alcohol and its effects we can look forward to a better generation and the government will not have to spend so much money on mental institutions.

PACKING FOR A LONG JOURNEY

Laos: A Symptom of What the Future May Hold in Store

THESE words are written amid the bustle and confusion of homely things that always rise, in any household, when a long journey has to be prepared. This reporter is off to Laos, to have a look at the new Communist aggression there. Since the United States has been fed so long on patented, government-issued tranquilizers, the trouble in Laos has as yet caused hardly a ripple. Maybe the aggression will soon be repelled, although it seems more likely that the key city of Sam Neua will soon turn into another Dien Bien Phu. In any case, what one will see in Laos probably will not be dramatic, if only because looking for jungle-fighting in those particular jungles is usually far worse than searching a haystack for a needle.

Nonetheless, just as a symptom, this trouble in Laos is really dramatically serious. It is bad enough as a symptom of what the future may hold in store in Asia.

It is very much worse as a symptom of the ill-concealed contempt for the strength and will of the United States and its President that is plainly felt by the President's prospective guest, Nikita S. Khrushchev.

To prove this shocking point, a comparison offered in a previous report may perhaps be repeated.

In brief, when Khrushchev first wanted a meeting with President Eisenhower, in 1955, he willingly paid for the meeting with the liberation of Austria and the restoration of normal relations with Yugoslavia.

This time, threats to Berlin have got Khrushchev what he has always wanted most of all—an invitation to meet alone with the President, with no bothersome allies at the table. And this time, the invitation to meet was hardly extended by Eisenhower, when the Communist attack on Laos was launched with Khrushchev's blessing.

What, then, is the explanation of this enormous and ominous change in the manners and methods of our enemy? In part, perhaps, the explanation lies in Khrushchev's consolidation of his personal power. Yet even in 1955, he needed very great personal power, in order to persuade Vyacheslav Molotov and the other Stalinists to agree to the ostensibly "peaceful" Austrian and Yugoslav gambits.

Ninetenths of the explanation of the change in Khrushchev must therefore lie elsewhere. It lies, beyond doubt, in the massive, unfavorable shift in the East-West balance of power that has occurred since 1953. In the Kremlin, the prevailing estimate of the power-balance is always the mainspring of policy. Nothing less than a great change in this Kremlin estimate can explain the great change in Khrushchev.

The stark fact of the change in the power balance is daily drowned in the United States, in floods of official soothing-syrup. Less than a year ago, the then secretary of the navy was happily denying that there were any indications of Soviet missile-launching submarines. Now, Adm. Arleigh Burke has announced that the Soviets are building a serious force of these vessels.

Our "Polaris" submarines, Adm. Burke added, will of course surpass the Soviet submarines when we finally get them—several years from now. The admiral did not add that the program that could have given us extremely useful missile-launching submarines now was cancelled because of the administration's budget mania.

But Khrushchev then gleefully boasted with all the politeness of an oncoming house guest, that the new Soviet underwater craft, which he has now, would cover any target in the United States from the waters of Hudson Bay.

By the same token, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Nathan Twining, was telling all and sundry only a few months ago that the Soviets probably did not have a true intercontinental ballistic missile, because no Soviet ICBM had been tested at full range. With his usual hearty bluntness, Gen. Twining brushed aside the scientists' warnings that the Soviets were using special instrumentation to test their ICBMs over reduced ranges.

But now the U.S. government has undisputed and, of course, unannounced evidence of at least two full-range Soviet ICBM firings which ended in the Pacific.

These recent ugly surprises for the administration's professional (one might even say careerist) optimists by no means convey the true extent of the shift in the world power balance. It would take a book to tell that story in full.

It is an ominous but not yet quite fatal story—a story of diminution of our striking power and weakening of our deterrent, balanced by Soviet gains in the same crucial areas.

Much can yet be done to give this story a better ending than now seems likely. But if Berlin and Laos mean anything, they mean that the needed action should not be delayed for another year, or another month, or even another day.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

A Little Lesson From the Boy Who Couldn't Learn

IT should not surprise any mother to discover that her darling little boy or girl is a changing although it may be a painful revelation.

Of course I do, not mean in the sense of imbecility or idiosyncrasy, or even to suggest that such a child is perhaps a "little bit retarded." I simply mean that probably the vast majority of all children are capable of the most astonishing transmissions—from perfect, almost angelic behavior, to conduct that is practically savage.

An example is when a child moves into a new neighborhood and shyly attempts to join in the games of the "old timers." One will see the group turn coldly away from the newcomer at the very least; or tease and taunt her (or him).

If the stranger is a boy he will most likely be invited to fight the biggest of the group.

And if the newcomer is of foreign parentage—as so many of us are—and is unfortunate enough to have some sort of accent, then the pack will be in full cry and hound him until some happy chance, like licking the biggest in the old-time group, admits him into the charmed circle of real fellows.

Most unfortunate in the days of my boyhood were what we now call "retarded" children for they were made the butt of endless and cruel jokes and driven away from normal companionship, for which they so deeply hungered.

There was such a boy in Spring Ridge. I forget whether he attended school, but I think not because he seemed incapable of deriving any real benefit from conventional educational methods and in those days, more than fifty years ago, there were no other methods; no time and no teachers to attempt to aid the retarded mind.

I liked him and found him a strangely interesting companion.

Like most of us he had a nickname; it was "Shadow" and I can think of no reason for it save that he was very thin and, for his age, very tall. His principle idiosyncrasy was that he must at all times have in his hand a lithe switch or a piece of wire and I have often waited while he patiently twisted a length from a fence. And his walk was uneven and jerky so that he would be at one's side at one moment and sliding off in the next.

He lived close to an area which we called the grass hill and regarded as our particular—and private playground. It was roughly a double city block bounded by Pembroke, Ridge, Chambers and Queen's roads and contained within this area a sharp ridge to the west which sloped down to a ravine and finally to a willow-lined pond—quite a large one indeed—large enough for rafts.

A footpath crossed the grass hill irregularly from southwest to northeast and in its centre was a little copse of alder and willow so dense that we hollowed it out to make our secret headquarters from which we would bang with peashooters at persons using the footpath.

Immediately outside the copse was a small grass-covered rise about 15 feet in diameter. This we leveled off and encircled the edge with a stone dry-wall open at the back to give egress to the secret place in the event of spies being around.

It is a tribute to my brother Henry's engineering skill that our old fort can still be traced.

Well, it was round about here that I sometimes walked or sat and talked with "Shadow" as the wind turned the willow leaves inside out and sang a whispered song through the dry grass.

Perhaps he was what is called a "natural." In any event he knew a great deal of the ways of birds and of little animals but he was without cruelty.

There was a day about this time of year when we had climbed the fence from Ritchie's pasture (where Princess Avenue now cuts through), and he had wrangled a piece of wire from the top and we walked—he with his peculiar half-skip—across the grass hill.

He asked me why I didn't get a job selling peanuts at the exhibition; said the kids went through the crowds with bags on trays supported by straps. "You can make pretty good dough," he added.

I said I wasn't interested and anyway I felt the man who runs the concession would gyp me.

"No, he won't," said the Shadow. "I hire all the kids; they work for me."

I wonder where he is now making about ten times as much money as I

MAKE A NOTE OF THEM FOR NEXT YEAR

An Experience That Must be Tried To Be Believed

FOR the last couple of weeks I have been camping up Island, and I return with renewed health and vigor.

One spring salmon and a considerable admiration for the department responsible for our provincial parks. Camping in itself is an excellent way of spending a family holiday, so long as the weather behaves itself, but camping in the surroundings that exist within a hundred and fifty miles of Victoria is an experience that must be tried to be believed.

I don't want to flog the old back-to-nature line—Thoreau has already got in there first—but there is no doubt that a short spell of living under simplified conditions is a valuable antidote to modern urban existence.

Not that anybody can pretend that camping in the provincial parks is a rugged business. With running water from a tap every fifty yards; clean and comfortable toilets (with a good reading light provided by translucent roofs); well-designed fireplaces with built-in trivet, and adequate wood supply, life is far removed from the back-breaking toil of the pioneer.

The cream of it all is that these magnificent facilities are provided right in the heart of the Island's most attractive scenery. Take the campsites at Little Qualicum Falls Park, for example, which is a firm favorite with my family.

Each site is separated from its neighbor by a thick screen of bush, and the sites are varied enough in design to provide a change for those who, like ourselves, return every year. Within five miles in one direction lie Cameron Lake and Cathedral Grove; a little more the other way and you are on the beach at Qualicum.

I suppose there are a number of people who would soon become bored by the kind of life we live on this kind of a holiday. There is nothing very exciting about the daily swim followed by long hours lazing in the sun, with a little gentle fishing in the evening after a campfire supper. It doesn't provide much opportunity for wearing fashionable clothes or matching bank-rolls with the Joneses. And yet there is something about it that we find eminently satisfying.

It is a little surprising to notice how comparatively few Victoria people use the camps. Judging by the licence plates of the cars, and the names and addresses in the registers kept at the camps, the majority of the campers are from off the Island.

A large number come from the United States, and these are invariably loud in their praise of the facilities provided. Many Americans have told me that B.C. has the best campsites on the Pacific coast, and that the Island camps, particularly Little Qualicum, are the best in B.C.

My own experience is confined to the Island, but I would certainly confirm our visitors' commendation of the Qualicum site.

Miracle Beach has too many camps crowded too close together with insufficient cover between them; and neither Stamp Falls nor Englishman's River can compare for comfort or privacy with Little Qualicum. Apart from the scenic attractions at the two latter parks, though, there is something not to be missed at Englishman's River.

A new picnic shelter has just been completed there which is quite the most admirable thing of its kind I have ever seen. Slightly Japanese in appearance, its butterfly roof and simple detailing make it a most satisfying thing to look at. The credit for this shelter goes to the engineering section of the parks branch, who are responsible for much that is first-class in B.C. park-building design.

One comes away wishing that everything done by the provincial government were one half so well done; and there isn't a municipality in B.C. that couldn't learn a lesson about the siting of living-space from these camps. We owe a great debt to somebody or other for putting this idea into practice years ago, and to the parks branch for extending and consolidating year by year.

As one sadly watches every last scrap of scenic beauty vanishing piece-meal in the Victoria area, one offers a vote of thanks to those individuals who had the foresight to preserve our rural beauty in a few places so that succeeding generations might enjoy something of this Island's pristine beauty.

If you haven't tried these camps, and you aren't too old or decrepit to enjoy a spell in the great outdoors, make a note of them for next year. They are the best value for any taxpayer can possibly get for his dollar.

Joe Armstrong

THE response of the people of this community, among whom no doubt are a number of gentle readers, to the news of Detective Sergeant Armstrong's encounter with the earthquake is really marvelous; it speaks in the most certain of terms the respect and even affection in which the police are held hereabouts.

SILENUS

Sergeant Armstrong typifies the police as they really are. Fiction delights in depicting the policeman in a great variety of ways, from classic stupidities like Inspector Lestrade to Maigret, Dick Tracy and Harthstone of the Death Squad. Yes, I know, what about Dragnet? Well, what about it? But Joe was none of these curiosities. He is the everyday officer, an underpaid individual who often risks his life in the dull routine of maintaining the Queen's Peace from day to day.

Not that this policeman's life is humdrum. Far from it. Joe Armstrong has been instrumental in cracking some of the most difficult cases which have ever arisen hereabouts; last year's forgery ring involved months of patient investigation, and the assembling of the evidence was a monument to the detective's art.

And our police are denied the freedom of the sleuths in the comic strips; they seldom get to trap their criminals in burning buildings, throw them out of third-storey windows or have them dragged behind freight trains. They have to bring them before courts of law which are painfully particular about proof; they must make their charges stick.

Gilbert's comic cop, whose lot was not a happy one, is not even a caricature. The policeman's lot is one of hard work, low pay and hours which would make even the IWA gasp with surprise; and there is the ever-present possibility of a knife in the ribs or a shot in the back, to say nothing of lesser injuries which are regarded as commonplace.

The number of ex-policemen hereabouts is astonishing; so is the number of those officers who have grown old in the service from sheer love of it.

Among these is Joe Armstrong of the Saanich Mobile Constabulary, as undaunted as ever despite his crushed bones and his gangrened foot. The response which Chief Pearson has had to his appeal for money for Joe and his family has shown that a good policeman has many friends.

Over the years a great many anti-social persons have tried, in one way or another, to remove the Detective Sergeant from the scene. Their signal lack of success is only pointed up by the failure of a full-blown earthquake to do the job.

Let us keep the pot boiling; many long months of hospital lie ahead, and there's a family to feed. A man who can beat earthquakes, landslides and suchlike eruptions deserves a generous hand: in the pocket.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Guinness on His Own

LONDON—Names in the news... Alec Guinness: The critics are trying to sort out why his new film The Scapgoat is not a good one. The feeling is that the fault lies in his switching over from just being an actor to producing and script-writing as well (after the fashion of that one-man movie enterprise Charlie Chaplin, who also writes the music).

One critic says of Guinness's latest: "A few words of advice might have stopped him from making a fool of himself in The Scapgoat."

The film's credit titles tell you it was made by Guinness's own production company. In other words, Guinness was the boss as well as the star and when he bores your ears off there's no one with the power to stop him.

Few critics have found good words to say about this adaptation of the Daphne du Maurier novel, an implausible piece about an English professor who takes on the identity of a no-good French aristocrat. Some film-makers can fashion a good film out of a poor book—but not the Guinness production company.

Kim Braden is following in the footsteps of mum and dad, Bernie Braden and Barbara Kelly. Ten years of age now, she has been enrolled at a theatrical school. This follows her mother's discovery of her embracing method acting.

"I look out of the window," says Barbara, "and see her in the garden," tears streaming down her cheeks. I rush out to find she's merely getting inside a part."

'Wait-See' Ottawa's PGE Stand

OTTAWA (CP)—Officials here adopted a wait-and-see attitude toward the British Columbia government's policy of not deducting Canada Savings Bond premiums from payrolls of provincial civil servants.

It was considered too early to assess the full ramifications of the new policy, outlined in a notice issued in Victoria Friday and signed by Premier Bennett.

The notice said the B.C. government will stop making savings bond payroll deductions in October. Starting in November, civil servants will be able through deductions to buy five-per-cent parity bonds issued by the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway. Ottawa officials had been expecting the B.C. move, described here as "something new and different."

Just how it will affect sales of Canada Savings Bonds in British Columbia as a whole was considered questionable. There was a suggestion that the federal government and the provincial government might end up competing for investment dollars.

An estimated $10,000,000 is said to have been invested by B.C. citizens last year in Canada Savings Bonds.

In Victoria Friday Premier Bennett asked leading industrial firms in B.C. to install a payroll deduction system whereby their employees can invest in the PGE bonds.

It was also learned Friday that, before cancellation of payroll deductions, B.C. civil servants bought about $500,000 worth of Canada Savings Bonds annually.

In Vancouver, B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said Premier Bennett's action will create "a compulsion."

Mr. Perrault said the government-owned railway must be "desperately anxious" to assure success of the bond drive.

PWA OPENS NEW ROUTE ON SEPT. 27

CAMPBELL RIVER—Starting Sept. 27, Pacific Western Airlines will make two flights daily between here and Vancouver.

The service comes as a result of building a community airport six miles south of here with funds provided by the village commission and federal transport department.

A 4,000-foot runway has been cleared and graded in the two months the airport has been under construction.

The inaugural flight was made by a PWA DC-3 this week, with chief pilot Jack Crosby and first officer Harry Bray at the controls, and other members of the company and their families as passengers.

They were met by village commission chairman Joe Kundy, airport committee chairman Don Corker, and Don Roper, who was responsible for getting the project under way.

Finest Crop Of Fir Cones Harvested

Finest crop of fir cones seen on Vancouver Island in the past 10 years is now being harvested by pickers, mostly high school students, working under direction of trained supervisors for the B.C. Forest Service.

George Silburn, forester in charge of reforestation, said much of the anticipated 8,000 bushels of cones will come from the 3,000-foot level, and that such seed will be used to replant higher areas on the island.

High school boys are doing much of the picking because their lighter weight will not damage trees. About 100 are at work now, and at the peak of the season next week there will be 200 on the job.

An example of untrained picking occurred in the Alberni district, where foresters found valuable seed trees in a plantation had been broken, and even chopped down, by independent cone pickers.

Cobble Hill Takes School Overflow

DUNCAN—In order to relieve overcrowding at Bench School, students from part of its attendance area will go to Cobble Hill School in the fall, Cowichan District 63 school board has decided.

Those concerned are pupils of Grades 1 to 5 who live between Tall Timbers Service Station and Wallall Road and those using the Wallall Road bus stop. Parents will be informed individually of the change.

Bus Driver Fined $25 For 'Ditching' Cars

(From Duncan Bureau)

Victoria bus driver Eric Shaw Dankin was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate A. C. Sutton here on a charge of interfering with the safe operation of other vehicles.

Dakin, a Vancouver Island Coach Lines part-time driver, was charged after two autos and an RCMP patrol car driven by RCMP Cpl. Max Hockstetter were forced onto the gravel shoulder of the road. The incident happened July 24, north of Chemainus River bridge.

Lloyd McKenzie, defence counsel questioned two bus passengers, Andrew John Montador and Alec Holloway, both of Victoria.

They testified a car had raced the bus when Dakin tried to pass, then slowed down when Dakin tried to return to the right lane behind the vehicle.

TRIED TO PASS
The bus driver told the court he had tried to pass and had failed over a clear one-half mile stretch of road. Dakin said he was forced to enter the curve in the left lane when he met three on-

Fishboat Rescued By Nanaimo Tug

Air-Sea Rescue officials in Vancouver reported today a fishing boat, the B-For Bob, was pulled off the rocks in Ruxton Pass early today by the Nanaimo tug Reaver.

The fishing boat went aground Friday night, 20 miles southeast of Nanaimo.

Search and rescue officials said the boat apparently was not seriously damaged, and that no one was injured.

600 Bottles Of Stolen Beer Found

RCMP at Chemainus Thursday discovered 600 bottles of eastern beer, half the quantity lifted by thieves late Wednesday or early Thursday morning from the E & N freight shed.

RCMP found the loot hidden in bush at the top end of River Road. The 50 dozen bottles were hidden by themselves, their cardboard containers buried in a different spot.

Thieves gained entrance to the freight shed, where the beer was being held in bond awaiting delivery to a Liberian ship riding out the strike off Ladysmith, by forcing a window above the telegraphers' desk on the track side of the station and smashing a door on the inside.

The theft was noticed Thursday morning by the Island Freight driver who had brought the shipment down to the shed Tuesday.

RCMP are still looking for the other 50 dozen bottles.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

60-Mile Zones

WEST COAST ADVOCATE

The controversy is still claiming attention regarding the 60 mile speed zones on certain British Columbia roads, with Supt. George Lindsay of the motor vehicle division claiming this rate of speed too great. He also claims that it is increasing the traffic casualties.

If those who favor a slower speed were to take to the highways they would find that the human factor is the largest in all accidents, and that the 60-mile zones do not enter this. They would also find that slow-moving cars often result in those following pulling out to by-pass them and this many times can result in accidents.

Let the pot boil for a while before any change is contemplated. The facts will sift out the causes themselves, but let us not stand still in this age of automobile safety.

Fight Apathy PARKSVILLE-QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS

In a few weeks the multitudes of tourists to the district will have gone for another year. The excitement of summer brought on by active people on holiday, will diminish, and we shall again become a small community thrown upon our own resources. Autumn and winter will be arriving.

With the exception of a small minority of community-minded citizens, the district will, once again, become wrapped in a cloak of stagnancy.

shrugging aside all responsibility and volition.

Apathy is a disease; and most diseases can be cured. Apathy can be cured but only by awareness and thought.

A community of people interested in advancement and who pull together for the common good, will be a community where new highways and new bridges will be built; a community with dust-free streets and dry sidewalks; a community where new businesses desire to come in, bringing employment, new buildings and new homes; where unpleasant odors will be banished and untidy, weed-flooded vacant lots eliminated. It will be a community without recurrent water restrictions, of flowering gardens and happy, prosperous people, where hotels, motels and stores will be busy for 12 months of the year and not three.

plants of the district, have achieved several much-needed changes. A bare field cannot be turned into an exhibition grounds overnight. Old fences have come down and new fences have gone up. Material has been moved from the old to the new grounds.

What has become an evil day for the IWA, in this long drawn-out strike, has been turned into a good turn and a satisfying experience for those of its members whose work for the community's annual fair has meant so much. Their community service should not be forgotten. It will be least appreciated by over-militant IWA leaders whose policy is always to get, never to give.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

UNTIL LAST MONTH I had never read Dickens' Little Dorrit, but when I had to make a long journey by air, and one book was all I had room for, its 968 pages seemed just what I wanted. I remembered that this was the acknowledged masterpiece of Dickens' mature period. I knew that Shaw had called it "a more seductive masterpiece than Das Kapital." I attacked it with keen appetite, but when I had finished it, I was inclined to agree with Thackeray's judgment that "Between ourselves, Little D. is d—d stupid."

Stupid, that is, as a masterpiece. Stupid as Dickens could be stupid, which was a vaster, showier, more baroque stupidity than a lesser man could achieve.

The demonic force of Dickens is operating at full pitch in "Little Dorrit." The humanitarian zeal of the book is irresistible; the rage against

Breeding and Wealth Unforgivable

The aristocratic world was unknown to him, and he presents it entirely as a collection of haughty villains and ineffective simpletons. To be well-born and well-off was, in his eyes, to be damned.

He knew nothing of the world of finance, and his picture of a financial swindler in "Little Dorrit" is unconvincing for we never see the man manipulating money or people; we are simply told that he did so.

His swindler is called Merdle; if you want a superb portrait of what Merdle was meant to be, read Trollope's "The Way We Live Now", in which Augustus Melmotte is a real swindler—operating in a real world of finance; Trollope knew how such things are managed, for he was a man of affairs; Dickens never was anything of the sort.

The kind of people Dickens admired were bourgeois merchants, who had acquired money blamelessly, and scorned social pretension.

In "Little Dorrit" the Meagles family are of this type, and they are presented as monsters of mindless benevo-

Cruel and Unjust Caricature

Thackeray thought Dickens a dear fellow, and greatly gifted, but rather a boomer: Dickens thought Thackeray the best of fellows, and richly talented, but rather a trifle. Both were right—and wrong.

Thackeray is not the only person to be caricatured in "Little Dorrit." In Flora Finching, the fat, loquacious, tripping former sweetheart of the hero, Dickens shows us what (to his eyes) had become of Maria Beadnell, his own former sweetheart, whom he had drawn so tenderly as Dora in "David Copperfield".

Dickens' relationships with women were always peculiar, and never more so than in this instance. His caricature of the woman whom he had once professed to love is cruel, venal, contemptuous and immensely funny.

It is as though he could not forgive her for failing to remain the girl of his boyish passion. He might be bald; he might be gouty; he might be unkind to his fat wife and a surreptitious visitor of the night-houses of Paris, but Maria must forever remain a dewy seventeen.

Dickens was a genius of the first order, but it is not necessary for a genius to possess either common sense or the feelings of a gentleman.

There is one portrait in "Little Dorrit" which is surely among the great things in English literature; it is the character of the heroine's father, Old Dorrit, "the Father of the Marshalsea." Dickens may not have known how financial swindlers worked, but he knew the inmost secrets of self-deception and the cruel sway it can exert.

Old Dorrit makes up for much of the irritating nonsense in the book, and even for that disquieting, infantile female spook, Little Dorrit herself.

Edgar Johnson, Dickens' latest biographer, calls this book "one of the dark masterpieces of Dickens' maturity"; Thackeray thought it damned stupid.

"THE NEVER-CEASING SLANT and heave of the ship." One of numerous photographs illustrating the book, "Once Is Enough," by Miles Smeeton.

Little Ship, Big Sea Breath-Taking Tale

ONCE IS ENOUGH, by Miles Smeeton. Rupert Hart-Davis. Illustrated with photographs, charts. (Reviewed by Monte Roberts)

"Once Is Enough" may not quite qualify as the book of the year, but, as a title, it wins hands-down as the understatement of the year.

What author Miles Smeeton set out to do was round the Horn west-east in a very small boat named Tzu-Hang, with his wife Beryl and friend John Guzzwell as crew.

All four—the skipper, boat, wife and friend are well known in these parts.

Miles (a retired brigadier with a fantastic military record) and his wife almost settled down in the Gulf Islands, until adventure called them back to the sea again.

Guzzwell built his own boat (the Trekkia) in Victoria, and is currently on the last leg of a round-the-world voyage which will set a dazzling series of records for small craft voyagers.

But the story of Miles Smeeton, as told in "Once Is Enough," is the story of Tzu-Hang, the boat that just wouldn't sink.

It is an amazing story, and one I would be inclined to believe, did I not know Miles Smeeton in person as well as by reputation.

CARTWHEEL FLIP
Tzu-Hang took two passes at the Horn—several months apart.

On the first, she was smashed down by a following sea which is beyond description. As Miles reconstructed the knock-down (from irrefutable evidence), Tzu-Hang was lifted by the stern, thrust bow under, flipped over in a cartwheel before she struggled to the surface—swept clean of masts and everything else above deck.

How Tzu-Hang refused to die, and how Miles and his wife and John Guzzwell fought to keep her alive, is told in factual breath-taking detail by the author.

On the second pass—after a complete rebuilding in South America—only Miles and his wife were aboard. Plus, of course, the non-working crew member, of Tzu-Hang, a Siamese cat named Pwe.

This time, when the seas began to build to out-of-the-world proportions, Miles decided not to run before them, but to lie a-hull.

So what happened? This time Tzu-Hang was rolled over, broadside—again losing everything above deck level.

Obviously, the Smeetons survived, otherwise this book would not have been written.

But how they did, I still don't understand.

Perhaps you can figure it out after you buy your copy of "Once Is Enough"—which I strongly recommend you do this instant.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Arts School Dominates Rocky Mountain Mecca

When I visited Banff this summer I couldn't help associating this small, mountain-surrounded town with Lhasa, capital of Tibet, half way across the other side of the world.

For, as is the case with Lhasa, when one walks about Banff one is aware that up on the hill, dominating one's daily life, is a building. I do not refer to the winter palace of the Dalai Lama, in this case, but to the new $500,000 extension to the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Somehow, like that other building, now, we are told, destroyed during this year's rebellion, the Banff School of Fine Arts sets its presence, its seal on this delightful, prosperous mecca of tourism.

And then there is the isolation. Williamson Banff, like Tibet's capital, is almost a country in itself.

True, Banff is only an hour away from Calgary; yet so self-contained is its isolation, it is difficult to realize this is part of the Dominion. It is a frontier town between Alberta and British Columbia. It is every place our imagination wishes it to be; for many, as it will be for myself from now on, it is the home of one of Canada's two cultural phenomena. The other phenomenon is Stratford.

And we must not forget that this summer Her Majesty the Queen visited the school, as did her sister in 1958.

Top Instructors

I am not in a position to write concerning the winter art courses except to report that they are well attended and popular.

However, I did have the occasion to visit various classes in progress this summer, and had the chance of talking at length with Professor William Townsend of the Slade, one of the most delightful and erudite of men who has been invited to the school for several summers.

I also met Janet Middleton, W. J. Phillips, Murray MacDonald, Charles Stegman and Francoise Andre and it goes without saying that one must be a dullard indeed not to derive benefit from such instructors as these.

"If there is a problem with the summer students," Townsend explained, "it is a matter of being overzealous. Some of the amateur students have one wish. They wish to paint a mountain and they expect to be able to do it after only six weeks instruction."

"They don't seem to realize it takes a lifetime to learn to paint. All we can do is set them along the right road."

The title, Banff School of Fine Arts, is not strictly accurate, but it at least attempts to impress upon us the willingness of those in authority to encompass as wide a curriculum as possible. The unofficial motto of the school, so I am told, is "make do with what you have."

Expanded Idea

"Making do," ever since its opening in 1933 as a branch of the University of Alberta, the school started as a school in the arts related to the theatre. Today there are

The type of student popular with all members of the staff is the young person, fresh from school or living in remote areas. I talked with students from Yellowknife and Whitehorse to whom the Banff School of Fine Arts summer course was the most exciting event in their lives.

From Vancouver Island I met a young girl from Nanaimo and a boy from Port Alberni—both of them in grade 12.

It is when one has talked with such young people who hope eventually to become professional artists that one appreciates the full value of the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Senator Donald Cameron, whose "make do with what you have" philosophy has raised the school to its present eminence, already has plans for further extensions. A new building for studio accommodation, an art gallery and other projects not yet named.

When you next visit Banff, take a trip up the hill and see for yourselves what ambition, enterprise and common sense can do in the most unexpected places.

It's quite a lesson!

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

So it's a bowl now that has fevered the imaginations of my symphonically well-intentioned fellow citizens! They have apparently been clean-bowled by the idea of banana-bowl concerts under star-studded skies as a combined symphony and tourist booster.

Well, I like bowls too—rose bowls, salad bowls, soup bowls, Ming bowls, Hollywood bowls and punch bowls—but not symphony bowls. Not for Victoria.

As sure as I'm sitting at this typewriter if the boys scoop this one out they'll find it far from being a bowl of cherries, but brimming with a combination of rainwater and tears.

Let's look at the facts. They are few, simple and discouraging. Some years ago, Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars was tried out in a Victoria edition. It lasted one shivering season at the Royal Athletic Park and was then driven under cover in the Arena for another season where it was crushed to death by sheer weight of costs.

Night baseball was another casualty of Victoria's predictably cool post-sundown temperatures.

Butchart Gardens... One Eye on Weather

Last summer excepted—it being a unique one that may not recur for another decade—who but an Eskimo could truthfully say that there are more than a dozen nights in any year when sitting around outside for an hour or so is not more a penalty than a pleasure.

Even that blessed and sheltered Eden, Butchart Gardens, with one eye on the weather, has not dared to chance its fortune beyond two concerts in the most dependable three or four weeks of mid-summer.

So much for the unsheltered outdoors in this city, surrounded as it is on three sides by water and flanked by snow-capped mountains with all the attendant winds and sea-changes.

Big Top Covered Stratford Venture

Then look toward Stratford and you will remember that the festival committee did not trust its activities to the warm Ontario nights when embarking on their hugely successful scheme.

Figuring on the inevitable occasions when wind, rain, hail and lightning would take over, they threw up a huge tent. And don't think that it didn't cost plenty.

Which brings me to my second and chief reason for personally rejecting the idea of a symphony bowl.

Even an uncovered bowl is going to cost a considerable sum to create. And suppose we could be guaranteed 20 years of balmy summer evenings—the bowl would still only be in use three months of the year.

Year-Round Pleasures and Comfort

But an auditorium now—that is quite another dish.

Anybody who has visited the Queen Elizabeth Theatre in Vancouver knows that it is a delightful place to go on a warm summer night with its fine air conditioning and its fountain and flower-graced outdoor promenade.

They know too, that it will be a wonderful place to go in winter gales or downpours and hip-deep snow (forgive me chambers of commerce for this slight exaggeration) when you can go from car to theatre seat without so much as a squelch of the foot or a misplaced strand of hair.

So what! you say. There's a mint of difference between a few thousands for a bowl and a few millions for such an auditorium.

True. But my point is that divided in our goal we will fail so resoundingly that it will take us at least a couple of generations to recover—if we ever do.

In plain words, for everybody's sake, forget the potentially disastrous bowl and let's get our sights up and concentrated on a really worthwhile objective.

Raise the thousands of dollars but use them to initiate

On Sunday afternoon, Sept. 13, a free concert will be presented in the grounds of the Parliament Buildings. Details of this program have not yet been released.

GRUBER CONDUCTS

'Come My Friends, We Sing' Walter's Call to Orchestra

The basic musical orientation of any conductor is the result of such factors as upbringing, musically speaking, geographical and artistic surroundings, the guidance of a trusted teacher—all the influences brought to bear in his formative years. Accordingly, Bruno Walter's basic approach to music is one of late nineteenth-century romanticism.

Gustav Mahler early became and ever since remained his model, artistically and personally; he (Walter) never of course, imitated anybody; as a conductor he is a unique phenomenon, uniquely himself; how he would have developed without having known Mahler Hans Gruber can only be pure conjecture.

Bruno Walter never pretended—any pretence would be as unnatural and strange to him as air to a fish—to have deep musical sympathy with any 20th century musical idiom. Only on rarest occasion has he been known to pay purely polite respects to modern writers. Some years ago he went so far as to record, with the New York Philharmonic the first symphony of Samuel Barber, but this was, for him, a rare exception.

Service to Classics Rather, he has devoted his phenomenal gifts to probing into the mysteries of the great masters of the past, roughly from Haydn to Mahler.

To say that his approach is one of late 19th century romanticism is not to say that he has failed to render conspicuous service to such arch-classicists as Haydn and Mozart. He approaches their music as a living and vital thing, written by men of flesh and blood; he reads into their works deeply personal expressions—not his own, but their's.

He brings certain elemental and immutable principles to bear common to all music worthy of the name, whether this music was written by Mozart or by Brahms or by Wagner or by Mahler; or, indeed, by Barber.

Everything must, before anything else, sing; he will only rarely stop an orchestra during a rehearsal to correct a purely technical slip; but he will stop immediately if a note, no matter how brief in duration, does not sing.

I think he would infinitely prefer a wrong note played with love and care and conviction than a right note lacking the most personal involvement on the part of a player.

"Expressive!" He will exclaim again and again. "Come, my friends, we sing!" is his almost invariable invitation to the orchestra to resume playing.

Beyond Technique His way of beating is an incomparable marvel. It is a technique that goes so very far beyond technique. The audience behind him is deprived of observing the incredible subtleties of his stick technique; they are for the musicians only. No slave he to the metronome; he will define, with luminous clarity, the difference between the purely rhythmic and the melodic; the horizontal and the vertical.

Having, in the C-major Mozart symphony, disposed of the first three bars which he regards as simply rhythmic, he came then to the linear passage beginning in the 4th bar, and his tempo was very different. Yet, there was not a

'FAIR LADY' DUPLICATE

Top Broadway Quality Makes Tour Smash Hit

By CLAIRE COX

NEW YORK (UPI)—The standing-room-only national tour of the musical "My Fair Lady" has proved that there is a little bit of Broadway on every Main Street, conductor Sylvan Levin reports.

(This company opens at the new Queen Elizabeth Theatre in Vancouver, Monday, for a two-week run.)

Levin, who stumped the country for two years with the hit musical without missing a single performance, said the stunning success of the show on tour is evidence that all the producers need to do is give the audiences what they want—good shows, well-dressed, well-produced and well-directed.

Levin, who has been conductor for Broadway musicals and operas as well as the foreign tours of "Porgy and Bess," believes the traveling "Fair Lady" is a hit because its cast is every bit as good as the one that appears nightly on Broadway—and perhaps even better.

IDENTICAL SETS

The sets and the costumes are identical to those seen on the New York stage. The orchestra is the same size—30 musicians.

"They tried to make an accurate copy of the New York company," Levin said. "You duplicate what is successful."

Levin prepared for the 740 performances he conducted by working first with the principals in his luxurious Manhattan apartment. He rehearsed the chorus on the stage of the theatre where the New York company appeared nightly.

The director, Moss Hart, put the entire show together for the first dress rehearsal, in Rochester, N.Y., in March 1957, where the company began a tour that still is going strong.

Levin took only five key musicians with him—a concert master, a drummer, a first trumpet, a harpist and a bass tuba player.

The rest of the musicians were recruited locally. Contractors signed up the orchestras months in advance, sometimes drawing on symphony orchestra musicians during slack seasons. In at least two cities—Des Moines and Omaha—college music teachers filled the orchestra pit.

Levin said his best orchestras were those provided in Los Angeles and Chicago.

LONG DAY

At 9 a.m. sharp on the morning of an opening in a new city, Levin brought his orchestra together. He rehearsed it until 4.30 p.m., closely-guarded from a score they never had seen before, through the major scenes with the cast. The performance ran from 8.30 to 11.30, when Levin's day was over at last.

"The day after we opened in a new town, I was always pretty well pooped," Levin said.

Another task of the conductor was to keep the understudies in top form so they could step in for the stars on a moment's notice. This was done with complete run-throughs of the show every two weeks.

Rehearsals of the first-string players were called whenever anything appeared to be slipping. The producers and director dropped in unannounced periodically to see that the show was in top form.

TO CONDUCTOR

Levin said that many audiences apparently do not realize that although many persons are involved in preparing a show, the entire performance suddenly is handed to the conductor at the moment the curtain goes up.

"The entire performance belongs to the conductor," he said. "He either makes it or breaks it. If he is slow, he can pull the tempo back. It is up to the conductor to feel whether the tempo should be faster or whether the singers are tired and the tempo should be dropped back."

"It takes less than five minutes to figure it out. You know right away. My standard is that every night should be an opening night performance. I couldn't do it otherwise."

(BB to A) "HERCULES" (Capitol)—If the story of Hercules had been able to match the wondrous color photography and bewitching sets of this Italian-made excursion into mythology, the film would have been worthy of an over-all "don't miss" rating.

Somewhere in the translation of the myth to celluloid, however, something was lost. It may have been the use of English dialogue dubbed to the lips of the Italian actors. "I would, too, that the play had been handled in a more sophisticated manner. As it stands, there are parts so naive that they seemed to have been written for Chums or The Boys Own Annual.

Nonetheless, there are scenes that have undeniable impact, mostly concerned with feats of strength of the legendary superhero. These take in archery, the discus throw, the flailing of the enemy with great chains by an enraged Hercules. There is a certain humor, too, that lends the picture reason and grace, such as when Hercules and his compatriots fall prisoners to the beautiful forces of the Amazons.

If memory serves correctly, certain liberties have been taken with the stories of Hercules, the "12 labors" being mixed up and interchanged with other stories that followed the "labors."

moment's question about perfect ensemble. So absolute is his physical way of communicating with his orchestra.

Watching Bruno Walter at work, it takes an observer but a few moments to realize that this, after all, is the ONLY way to conduct.

Volumes Slowed To Near Trickle

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A cooling off in the cold war, coupled with a possible early settlement in the U.S. steel strike had Canadian stock markets trailing New York this week like a little boy follows his mother.

But New York did little and Canadian markets did less as volumes slowed almost to a trickle and daily gains for the most part were in fractions.

Observers were of the opinion that sooner or later the main upward trend should be resumed but several weeks may be needed to form a suitable base.

CHANGES SLIGHT

Index changes at Toronto were thought to be the smallest in a number of years. Western oils were off more than three-quarters, but industrials and base metals were down a few decimal points while golds added .01.

One observer summed up the action, "the market moved here and there, but went nowhere."

The food chains looked as if they might provide a little excitement as a trading stamp war broke out in Ontario and threatened to spread across the country. Loblaw's and Dominion Stores did little, but Steinberg's A was up $1.87 1/2 at $27.25. Dominion Stores gained $2 but then settled back unchanged at $63. Dominion so far has not entered the trading stamp give-away.

SIMPSON'S SLIPS

Simpson's Ltd. reported increased sales for the first six months but earnings were down from a like period in 1958. Simpson's dipped to a low of $34.12 1/2 before recovering to close off 7/8 cents at $35.50.

Strikes continued to dog the U.S. mining industry but base metals reacted little in the week. International Nickel lost 6 1/2 cents at $96 for the largest change. The U.S. government announced that it had worked out an agreement with International Nickel whereby it was relieved of buying about 26,000,000 pounds of nickel from the Canadian company.

A handful of speculative mines and oils were active

EX-VICTORIAN NEW DIRECTOR OF B.C. POWER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Appointment of Arthur B. Christopher, formerly of Victoria, to the board of directors of the British Columbia Power Corporation was announced today by president A. E. Grauer. Mr. Christopher, president of Nelsons Laundries Ltd., succeeds John L. Farris, QC, who was appointed a temporary director last spring following the death of James G. Robson.

boosting volumes slightly. On the week 13,522,000 shares traded at Toronto, compared with 13,229,000 shares last week. However, much of the activity came from these lower priced issues and dollar values dropped from $37,353,479 last week to $26,534,983.

Orchan featured the mines as it joined that select group of issues trading more than 2,000,000 shares in a week. It added 10 cents at $1.00. The company has reported that it has some promising assays from its main Cote group of claims in Mattagami, Que.

Newsprint Output Up During July

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian newsprint production totalled 335,823 short tons in July compared with 508,445 tons in July, 1958. The Newsprint Association of Canada has reported.

The July, 1959, figures represent 20,194 tons a working day and 83.6 per cent of 1959 rated capacity while July, 1958, production was 19,073 tons a working day and 81.2 per cent of rated capacity. Production in June, 1959, was 85.6 per cent of capacity.

MINING FIRMS PLAN MERGER

TORONTO (CP) — Plans to merge 10 small mining companies, nine of which are listed on Toronto Stock Exchange, all headed by A. W. Johnson of Toronto, have been announced.

Shareholders of the companies will be asked to approve the merger at their annual meeting Sept. 9 here.

The new company will be called Hydra Explorations Ltd.

Policy Holder Death Won't Stop Car Insurance

Leading B.C. auto insurance companies say they will continue to pay claims after the death of the policy holder regardless of a recent Ontario Supreme Court ruling.

The court ruled in one particular case that car insurance expires on the death of the owner, and his wife or anyone else driving the car would not be insured.

"I think there must be special circumstances in this case," the Victoria manager of a well-known auto insurance firm said today.

"I don't think this matter has ever been raised in B.C. courts. The standard practice in Canada has been to pay claims after the death of the policy holder."

"For instance, if the policyholder dies at home or in his office while his wife is still driving his car and the wife has an accident she is still insured."

"There are, however, loopholes in the insurance laws which might enable an insurance firm to withhold coverage in such cases. We shall be revising our contracts to cover these loopholes over the next few months."

Qantas Jets In Vancouver Next Month

VANCOUVER (CP) — Qantas Empire Airways will open the first pure-jet airline service into Vancouver next month when it begins a weekly service between here and Sydney, Australia, via San Francisco and Honolulu.

A Qantas spokesman here said Friday the service, first Boeing 707 jet flights scheduled into Canada, begins Sept. 11 and will cut the flying time between Vancouver and Sydney to less than half the present 35 hours needed for the Super Constellation trip.

At the same time, the airline will begin a Boeing jet service between Vancouver and London, taking 14 hours for the overseas flight.

On Oct. 2 it plans to open an around-the-world schedule that will go from Sydney to New York, London, Rome, Bangkok and back to Sydney in 51 hours.

2 Banks Suspend Offer to Join TCA Flight Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines said Friday a proposal that two banks join its fly-now-pay-later plan has been withdrawn temporarily because of the shortage of loan money.

A TCA official said the Canadian Bank of Commerce and La Banque Canadienne Nationale had recently been approached about handling loans for the credit scheme. TCA now has been notified the banks have suspended acceptance of the offer.

TCA finances such plans through the Bank of Nova Scotia and this system will continue.

CLOSING PLANT

MONTREAL (CP) — Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. has announced it is closing its magnesium-producing facilities at Arvida, Que. It said the plant, with an annual capacity of 4,000 tons, was uneconomical.

Basementless Bungalow Has Interesting Interior

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—Have followed your instructions for propagating hydrangeas from cuttings. Am now wondering how long should the pots of cuttings be left in the plastic bags?—Mrs. A.C., Sidney.

A.—The hydrangea cuttings will root fairly rapidly at this time of year, probably in three to four weeks. Take off the rubber band from the gathered-up top of the bag once a week to see that the soil is moist. By the end of the allotted time, remove the pot from the bag, and gently pry out a couple of cuttings to see if roots have formed.

If so, the bag should remain open for a few days before removing it entirely. If not rooted, return pot to bag and close it.

Q.—The gladiolus question from Mrs. A.C. of Sidney, is still receiving attention. Hope to have the answer for next week.

Q.—Will you please advise me what chemical to use to kill off all growth, grass, weeds, everything?

A.—Mrs. R.B.S., Victoria. Soil sterilants may be purchased under various trade names at any farm and garden supply store. If it is intended to use these products in a residential area, it would be worth while obtaining the advice (or services) of a commercial weed control firm whose operators know the effects and limitations of each brand and the hazards connected with their use.

This four-bedroom, basementless bungalow was designed by F. W. Sunter, of Nanaimo, and architect D. L. Sawtell, of Vancouver. Of frame construction, the house is divided into three fairly distinct divisions with the kitchen, all-purpose room and living room on the left separated from the bedrooms on the right by a central portion which extends from the storage at the back to the front bedroom.

The ceilings are level in the central portion which contains the heating equipment and the toilet and bath facilities. All other ceilings follow the roof slope but rafters and beams are not exposed. The kitchen with its U-shaped working area, and ample cupboard space will find favor with the busy housewife.

The total floor area is 1,368 square feet and the exterior dimensions 42 feet six inches by 32 feet, two inches, excluding carport. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 807, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Care of Masonry Walls Keeps Home Attractive

With a minimum of care and attention, you can keep the interior and exterior walls of your home attractive and in good condition. Cracks commonly occur in conventional plaster interior walls as a result of normal shrinkage in lumber used for framing. The cracks can also be caused by vibrations set up by heavy street traffic.

Because cracks are most likely to occur early in the life of the house, while it is drying out, many home-owners postpone expensive decorating until the house has settled or "broken in." Then, before decorating is done, cracks can be filled by the home-owner or by a professional decorator. Plaster, spackle or similar compounds are commonly used.

Many new homes employ "drywall" plaster or gypsum wallboard on interior walls. This material should give you excellent service and, with minimum care, last for the life of the house.

LESS WATER

One advantage of drywall construction is that it eliminates the entry of large quantities of water into the structure of the house, such as occurs when plastering is done on the site. This means, in turn, that contraction and expansion problems are less, since they are caused largely by moisture.

Minor cracks can still occur, of course, due to other stresses in the house.

It is best to leave repairs of these cracks until redecorating is done. At that time fill the cracks with spackling compound (available from your paint or hardware store), smoothing the surface after it hardens with fine sandpaper. Then redecorate the entire wall.

Some times unusual abrasions scuff or indent the surface of interior walls. These can be filled with two or three applications of cement of the type used for taping joints in drywall panels.

Lime Helps Aerate Soil

Air and moisture can be made to penetrate heavy soil by the addition of lime. It also will correct the tendency of soil to become acid because of decaying roots. Late fall is the best time to apply lime.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Not Ignorance But Climate Makes Us Flout Tradition

By JACK BEASTALL

Those of us who have lived on the southern end of Vancouver Island for a few decades have become accustomed to being classified as "different." In most of the published explanations of this difference no link has been made between us and our climate.

Yet it is well known that climate determines how people live, the activities in which they indulge, and the general level of their intelligence.

Apathy and the resultant lack of initiative are found in areas where there is little change in weather throughout the year, while in the temperate zones are to be found the races with the highest ratings in initiative and intelligence.

To explain why most of us indulge in gardening, writers are prone to state that we descend from generations of gardeners. This may be the case in a few instances, but it is not true of all who have made this area their home. Many of our most ardent gardeners can blame neither heredity nor past experience.

We are gardeners because an irresistible force compels each newcomer to indulge in the growing of plants for both spiritual satisfaction, and the beautification of their surroundings, and that force, in my opinion, is the climate of the area.

SUCH DIVERSITY
Although every city in Canada has its gardens and gardeners, only in a climate such as ours can such a diversity of plant material thrive, and it is the extensive range of material which we grow that has earned for us and our gardens the epithet "different."

Because of the climate, gardening itself is entirely different in this area, as any newcomer will vouch. It takes but a short while to realize that practices which have become standard through tradition are not always best under our conditions.

As an example we can take the widespread teaching that plants should only be moved in the spring.

In this area the gardening year starts in September, and most of the work generally recommended for March through May can be performed more easily here in the September to November period, and with better overall results.

FALL BEST

New material purchased and planted in fall will give a far better account of itself than the same material moved in spring. This also is evident when plants are moved to a new location within the garden, or when lifted, divided and replanted in the same spot.

It takes a drastic upheaval to break tradition. No plant was ever moved in my garden until the time stated in a massive tome, and the time for most plants was listed as spring. Then came the September when over 200 plants had to be moved at a week's notice, including fleshy rooted subjects as red-hot-pokers and Japanese anemones.

Despite our pessimistic beliefs, all those plants did better the following year than in previous seasons when spring moving was practiced, and the reason was not difficult to determine.

ROOT DAMAGE

Every time a plant is lifted from the soil a certain amount of root damage results. In the case of young seedlings in the greenhouse we have learned that less moisture and more warmth in the soil encourages faster healing of the damaged surfaces and production of new roots.

If it were possible to control the moisture and temperature in the open garden as we can in the greenhouse, our outdoor plants would re-establish themselves more quickly, and losses from moving would be almost eliminated.

In this area, outdoor conditions are best suited to the rapid replacement of roots during September and October. The soil is still holding an appreciable amount of the heat accumulated during July and August, and the moisture can be controlled because heavy rainfall has not arrived.

COLD, WET

Conditions are reversed in the spring. In March the soil is cold because of the amount of water it contains, and a cold, wet soil does not encourage root action, especially the repairing of damaged roots.

Our average temperatures over 57 years for March, April and May are 44, 49 and 53 degrees respectively, with rainfall decreasing from 4.5 inches to one inch. Temperatures for September, October and November average 57, 57 and 45 degrees with rainfall increasing from one-half inch to four inches.

The main objection raised by gardeners is that the plants have not died down in September, and the belief lingers that no plant should be moved while a green leaf or a flower remain.

Where plants are grown in quantities for sale it is a practice to make small divisions and develop these into large plants by cutting back the top growth frequently during the season and causing the plant to stool out at the crown.

COMFORT TOO

Cutting back the tops of newly acquired plants, or plants which are to be moved, in September has the same stooing-out effect although not to such a marked degree.

If there were no other arguments in favor of fall planting, the matter of personal comfort should be very compelling. Fall days are mild and strong winds are comparatively few, whereas spring days can be chilly, blustery and the soil almost mud.

We will admit that we are different, that our gardens are different, and that gardening under our conditions is different. The next thing we have to do is to adapt the age-old accepted practices to our conditions.

Tradition is worth following, but can only be followed profitably when it originated under conditions similar to our own.

Before laying asphalt tile on old wood floor, use 15-pound felt and do not lap the joints. Apply asphalt-felt cement to the wood floor before applying the felt, and apply the asphalt-felt cement to the felt before laying the asphalt tile.

Patio blocks, broken concrete sidewalk sections or smooth, flat stones can be used for a walkway along the drive.

Drive Walkway Easily Installed

By MR. FIX

Today's autos on yesterday's average, single-lane drives crowd passengers into the grass so often that it's worth a look-see at ways to add a little foot-room for those not acrobatically inclined.

Widening the drive doesn't involve tearing out major construction.

Patio blocks, each two or three inches thick, are often used for making a walkway. If you really want to economize, try to locate some broken chunks of concrete paving, or some smooth, flat stones. If space is limited, the regular shape of the patio block may be easier to handle.

EXTRA INCH

Dig out the earth along edge of the drive to a depth equal to the thickness of the block, plus an inch more. The extra inch is for a layer of sand. Before putting in the sand, tamp and scrape the earth at the bottom and sides of trench.

When putting the stones in place, make certain that their surfaces are flush with the surface of the drive. If not, someone is sure to trip. Adding or subtracting sand will bring blocks to the proper height.

Blocks can be made to remain secure by digging out some extra dirt along the outside edge and anchoring the blocks with a two-inch strip of redwood. Some stakes driven in at intervals will hold the strip in place.

Sweep the extra sand into cracks between blocks, and between blocks and drive.

Where drive meets the street, the problem is a little more difficult.

The car, turning slightly as it enters the street, may slip off the edge of the apron. This is bad for the lawn and bad for the wheels of your car as well.

This situation calls for additional concrete, a surface strong enough to support the weight of an auto.

Dig out the ground to a depth of at least six or eight inches. Another two inches at outer edge of area will leave room for pieces of lumber to serve as a form. Drive stakes into the ground to hold the lumber.

Concrete can be mixed on the driveway surface. Ready-mix concrete in dry form, while a little more expensive than buying separate ingredients, saves the work and bother of measuring. Use gravel mix.

Shovel the concrete into the excavated area and fill completely. With a strike board, a piece of lumber with a straight edge—level the surface. A half hour later, go over the surface with a float or steel trowel. Keep concrete damp for about a week.

SPUTTERING STOPPED

Covering candles with a shellac will prevent them from sputtering. It also eliminates bending while being stored.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

All house plants which have summered outdoors should be moved in before house heat is on steadily. Wash the pots on-steadily. Wash the pots and inspect the plants carefully so that no insects are taken indoors.

Potted Azaleas will thrive indoors if given frequent syringings with tepid water. Grow in sunny windows.

Last chance to check greenhouse heating system. Have everything in readiness to put on a little heat when necessary. Pull out the summer flowering annuals as soon as main display is over. If area is to be planted with bulbs, dig over thoroughly and add bone-meal.

Commence planting out of any hardy young material raised during summer, such as the biennial foxgloves, wallflowers and forget-me-nots, the perennial lupin and aquilegia, and the rooted shrub cuttings. Dig early varieties of potatoes and use before the late varieties, which will keep for winter and spring.

Sow new lawns; light sprinkling will be needed frequently to ensure early germination of seed.

Prune peach trees after fruit is picked.

Place stakes at locations where young fruit or ornamental trees are to be planted later, and gradually prepare the individual spots during the next few weeks.

By UP International.
The Giants and White Sox have hit on a common pennant formula in which they tease their competitors and tempt 'em a bit, then trample 'em when they climb up too close.

That's exactly how the two league leaders handled matters Friday night.

With Willie Mays leading the way, the Giants crushed the second-place Dodgers, 5-0, and widened their National League lead to three games before 66,068 fans at Los Angeles.

Sherm Lollar did the honors for the White Sox, slugging a three-run homer that beat the second-place Indians, 7-3, snapped their eight-game winning streak and fattened Chicago's American League margin to 2½ games before 70,368 at Cleveland — largest crowd to witness a regular major league game this year.

THREE-RUN SMASH
Mays had a single, double and three-run homer, all of which helped Sad Sam Jones to his 17th victory. Jones struck out 11 and gave up eight hits. Don Drysdale, who complained recently about being second-guessed, never got past the second inning. He yielded all of San Francisco's runs.

Lollar was the whole show for the White Sox in the first game of their "showdown series" with the still hopeful Indians. His 20th homer of the season with two men on in the seventh inning broke a 3-3 tie. He hit it off reliever Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who took over for starter Jack Harshman in the fifth.

ANOTHER FOR SHAW
Bob Shaw, the "surprise" of the White Sox staff this year, turned in a seven-hit effort to win his 14th game against only four setbacks.

In other AL games, the Yankees blanked the Senators, 4-0; the Tigers topped the Athletics, 6-5, in 10 innings, and the Red Sox licked the Orioles, 6-4, in 10 innings.

In the National League, the Pirates rolled over the Phillies, 9-0; the Cardinals ripped the Reds, 3-2, and the Braves beat the Cubs, 9-3.

The Braves, still entertaining notions that they can overtake the Giants, crushed the Cubs with the aid of homers by Hank Aaron, Joe Adcock and Del Crandall. Lew Burdette held the Cubs to eight hits for his 18th victory.

Birds Expecting Tougher Battle

Eagles were expecting to run into rougher water today.

After sailing past Wakeman-Trimble in the Senior Amateur Baseball League semifinal in two straight games, the Birds tackled league-champion Pages in the first game of the best-of-five final this afternoon at Royal Athletic Park.

Pages, rested and confident, appeared certain to provide more of a problem than did Wakeman-Trimble. The Eagles stomped on the WTs, 13-7, at Athletic Park Friday after winning the first game of the series, 14-8.

Friday's game was broken open by Eagles' 14-hit attack

Too Much Like Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barbara McIntire, who sells real estate for her father in Lake Park, Fla., when she is not swinging a golf club, faced pretty Joanne Goodwin of Haverhill, Mass., today in the 36-hole final of the national women's amateur golf championship.

Miss McIntire won in extra holes Friday for the second straight time, downing Mrs. Paul F. Klinefelter of Philadelphia, 1-up on the 19th hole.

"This is too much like work," Miss Goodwin sighed after Friday's round in 95-degree heat. "I think I'm going to stop playing golf for awhile after this thing is over."

Playing-manager Art Worth replaced starter Steve Bishop on the mound to quench the rally and Eagles were as good as in the final.

The two Eagle hurlers gave up a total of eight hits. Second game of the final will be played Tuesday at Royal Athletic Park.

STAMP OF SUCCESS

The multiple listing plan works well because owners like action once they've decided to list their home for sale. You get exactly that with your board member realtor when you specify a multiple listing.

From listing picture to proud possession—sometimes in a matter of less than a day! The percentage of homes sold by "multiple" board member agents is impressive—and small wonder. More than 400 salesmen are acquainted with the features of every property that's on a "multiple" listing. With this kind of an enthusiastic, united sales force results are excellent!

New Air Service Opens at Pat Bay

A new phase in west coast civil aviation opens today when Victoria Flying Services Ltd. start operations from the Victoria International Airport.

Flying Services will operate, initially but with fast expansion planned, six Cessna charter aircraft, a repair shop for aircraft, a plane rental service, a flying school, and Cessna sales.

Top man in the organization is veteran "flymaster" William "Bill" Sylvester, 48, founder of B.C. Airlines, who sold out three years ago.

Still a director of B.C. Airlines, Mr. Sylvester admits his head is "still in the sky." Thus the new company.

Hangar No. 15 at Patricia Bay is headquarters. There, apart from the 115 by 112-foot hangar, will be waiting rooms, offices, and the necessary repair shops. The hangar has been completely made over to take care of requirements.

SALES AND FUEL

In effect, nearly every aspect of aviation will be handled by the new company, including aircraft sales and handling of a fuel supply service for visiting water-borne aircraft.

Victoria Flying Services will officially represent the older B.C. Airlines in this area. It will call on B.C. Airlines for charter work involving larger aircraft.

The Cessnas utilized carry three passengers and the pilot. B.C. Airlines have planes that take up to 10 passengers, and more.

The new company includes men already well known in flying. Associated with Mr. Sylvester is Joe Howroyd, co-partner in a flying field immediately outside Victoria.

W. B. SYLVESTER
... back in harness.

Stan Scurrah, for many years with B.C. Airlines and now on the new organization's administrative staff, and secretary-treasurer E. A. Cox, long associated with B.C. Airlines.

OPEN HOUSE HELD

Under the aegis of Mr. Sylvester, a hard-driving, cigar-smoking, easy-going bush-pilot type, the new air company is assured of success.

He doesn't admit it, but he's back in harness because of "boredom" since relinquishing control of B.C. Airlines three years ago.

An "open house" will be held this weekend to introduce the new facilities to the public. It will include a display of Cessna aircraft and demonstration flights of various models to be offered for sale.

Mr. Sylvester issues a personal invitation to persons interested in the up-to-date development—come out and look around, he says.

Drive out on East Saanich Road until you come to Victoria Flying Service sign, then follow arrows to entrance.

Bridge Goes Ahead

VANCOUVER—A 62-ton upright assembly was put into place Thursday at the south end of the $22,000,000 Second Narrows Bridge here, bringing the bridge to the main pier at that end.

Work on the bridge was held up for several weeks during a strike of steelworkers, and several court injunctions centred around the pier—No. 16—which was reached Thursday.

ULTRASONIC FISHING

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP)—Raytheon Company said Friday it has developed a tiny depth sounder that helps fishermen land the big ones. The unit, six inches in diameter and weighing less than five pounds, sends out ultrasonic signals. Red flashes show up on the dial when the boat passes over large fish.

OF ALL PLACES

By HORACE SUTTON

KETCHIKAN, Alaska — When you're in Alaska you're "inside." When you're anywhere else you're "outside." Anybody who has been "inside" too long is liable to turn "morningside," which is to say, over-ripe.

The inside city nearest the outside is Ketchikan, which, despite its handy location 702 miles from Seattle, cannot be reached either by highway or railroad. Loaded to the railings with tourists, the big steamers filter up the ragged tail of the Alaska panhandle. They come to roost here practically in the centre of town. But the big Stratocruisers of Pan American that lumber up in leisure from the Northwest, cannot land at Ketchikan which occupies an island with the handy handle of Revillagigedo. The planes descend on nearby Annette Island which is easier to spell anyway, and passengers are whisked across the water on the amphibious flying machines of Ellis Airlines which take off from a dry runway and land at the Ketchikan waterfront twenty minutes later.

Rain Capital

Fish, totem poles, and rain assemble in great profusion in Ketchikan which calls itself the Salmon Capital of the World. It may very well be the rain capital of the world, too, for the dew has descended here at the rate of 150 inches a year in moist seasons. In 1949 the liquid sunshine gauge in front of the Alaska Specialty Shop blew a gasket when the drizzle reached up 202.5 inches. Local statisticians have insisted that if two elephants were to stand on top of each other here both would drown. And the same types declare that salmon swim up main street in certain seasons and spawn in the gutters, but that is probably an exaggeration.

Ketchikan is a cosmopolitan frontier or Norwegian fishermen, Swedish lumberjacks, Filipino fish handlers, and Tlingit and Haida Indians. Yet it is no exaggeration that in the proper season seal lions can be seen from the wharves which are practically in the dead centre of town. The new high school is all aluminum and glass, and there is a new $50 million pulp mill and a cluster of pink and green 12-storey skyscrapers.

Totems Galore

In between all this progress stand the totems. Ketchikan has more of them than any other city in the U.S. There is a forest full of them at the metropolis known as Mud Bight, and a fantastic group graces its Dallesque expressions at Saxman Park. The famous Chief Johnson totem pole is planted smack in town opposite the five-storey Ketchikan Federal building.

Totems are read from top to bottom and they tell either genealogy, wealth, death, or scandal. An early day gossip columnist in the Indian camp had to be pretty handy with an axe.

The Ingersoll is easily the choicest hotel in all Alaska, probably because Ketchikan has not as yet been overrun by the hordes of travelers that sweep across the tundra into Fairbanks, Anchorage, and Juneau. A half-hour drive out of town will bring you to the Clover Pass Resort, a collection of seven simple cabins equipped with chemical toilets. Luncheon is served in Sally's Galley and Sally, who is the owner's wife, makes dinner in the main house — moose steak, venison, and elk. King salmon are caught, as our guide explained, "right smack dab in front of the place" and they average about thirty pounds. Rock cod and bass are so plentiful they are considered a bait-eating annoyance.

Less than three hundred miles up the panhandle, Juneau hangs precariously at the very edge of the Gastineau Channel, with the towering mountains all but crowding it into the drink. The piney hills rise suddenly like an Adirondack village and the tourists wash into the town each summer's day like a flood tide. The Baranof charges big city prices but it is a sorely tried hotel where more than likely you will smash your own baggage even though the tariff for a double room comes to $17 a summer's night. Its saving grace is its restaurant where stateside steaks are grilled over the charcoal embers, and nobody gets burned by the prices.

Juneau's museum on the hill is the best in Alaska and collects everything from relics of the Wiley Post-Will Rogers plane crash at Point Barrow, to stools used by the Eskimos to keep their feet from freezing while fishing on the ice. A museum in itself is The Nugget Shop, the best store for genuine Alaskan artifacts that we saw. Its shelves are filled with Eskimo-etched walrus ivory carving sets, Eskimo gambling stones, copper face masks with abalone teeth that are museum pieces, old seal floats with blue trading beads for eyes.

Novel Store

Fur stores flourish in Juneau, and the most unusual collection is at an obscure shop called Harbor Leather which maintains its own seal boat and does its own hunting. It makes salmon skin shoes at $50 the pair, sells leopard seal jackets and coats at one-ninth the price on the outside. Rarest inside item: unborn seal — $4,500 for the coat.

At night the footloose fraternity foregatherers in Juneau's Red Dog Saloon which is done up in a decor of cross-eyed totem poles, old snowshoes, moose antlers, and wall to wall sawdust. Hattie Jessup, dressed in a red blouse and a harness of sixty-five silver dollars, has a sure hand on the piano which she plays to the accompaniment of her own cackling laugh.

Pacific Travel Zooms

SAN FRANCISCO — A sharp upsurge in Pacific travel, well above what had been predicted by industry leaders, was reported today by George M. Turner, executive director of the Pacific Area Travel Association.

Nine countries polled by PATA reported an average increase of 21.3 per cent in the number of tourists during the first half of this year, compared with the same period in 1958. The tiny Portuguese colony of Macau, once famed for its "wickedness," claimed the largest increase—40 per cent for the six-month period.

Hawaii was close behind with 38 per cent, and Hong Kong third with 29 per cent, Turner said.

In numbers of tourists, Hawaii was far in front with 109,667 arriving in those sunny islands during January through June. Japan was in second place, and Hong Kong was third.

BANGKOK'S FAMED MARBLE TEMPLE

Dazzling city for architectural beauty is golden Bangkok, and amongst its beauties none is more famous than the Marble Temple. It was built 70 years ago of marble imported from Italy. Architects achieved an impressive integration between western architecture and traditional ornate Thai decorations.

CAMERA BUG'S PARADISE

From Diamond Head to Paia, the island of Oahu probably is the most photographed of any island in the world. Hawaii's scenic attractions tempt all photographers amateur and professional alike.

But, watch your shutter! The bright sun and reflections from the water play tricks with exposures. You will be advised to use an exposure meter or follow directions which have been prepared by experts and are distributed through downtown Honolulu and Waikiki Beach camera shops.

Despite the demand, supplies of all types of film are readily available and photo finishing is fast and topgrade.

Norway's Fjords Popular

Stavanger, the principal gateway to the fjord country, is Norway's most active tourist centre.

The city is a fascinating combination of narrow cobblestone streets and modern business and residential sections. Two of its principal points of interest, however, are ancient ones — the 12th century cathedral with its beautiful interior, and the always lively fish market, where transatlantic steamers, cargo vessels and fishing craft tie up at its midtown pier.

Tour officials of Scandinavian Airlines System report the hotel situation in Stavanger as excellent. The Atlantic, one of Scandinavia's best, offers modern accommodations and unique restaurants and bars, among them the "Grotto" blasted into the rocks under the hotel.

POPULAR TOUR

Stavanger's scenic fjord excursions range from one hour to several days. Two three-day tours, the "Discovery Route" to Bergen through beautiful Hardangerfjord, and the "Wonderful Fjord Tour" via Hardanger to Oslo, are especially popular with visitors.

For tourists in a hurry, capsule cruises are suggested. A luxurious new fjord cruiser, the "Clipper", leaves daily for one of the area's strangest and most awe inspiring sights — the "Lysefjord Pulpit" — a 4,500-foot rock rising vertically out of the narrow fjord. At Molla, a beach restaurant just a few miles outside town, the "Leif Eriksson", a replica of an old Viking longboat, makes daily excursions on the Hafslofjord, the scene of the battle fought by Harold the Fair-Haired in 872 for the unification of Norway. To get into the Viking spirit of things, meat from drinking horns and meat from the spit are served on board.

Fishing is so good in Stavanger waters that boat operators make an unusual guarantee — no catch, no charge.

A FORESTER'S TRAVELS

By Fran Robinson

First woman ever admitted to the Association of British Columbia Foresters, University graduate Mrs. A. B. "Fran" Robinson, 32, is currently touring Scandinavia and the U.S.S.R. to further studies on forest management. For the past three years she has been employed with the British Columbia Forest Service in Victoria. Mrs. Robinson is also married to a forester, A. B. "Tony" Robinson. Their home here is at 1416 Fairfield. While on tour Mrs. Robinson is writing a column for the Times.

Copenhagen—Somewhere in the program foresters will say, "But of course you will want some time to see the city," so there are days of "no schedule" which must be filled. In Helsinki this was fine. There was always a cousin or two about, or a party at the Canadian legation (those people have more parties) to keep me occupied. In Stockholm, too, there were friends to wile away an evening with. But Copenhagen, wonderful Copenhagen, started off with a fizzle instead of a bang.

It all started when a checked suitcase somehow got off the train at one station, and I got off at another. Some four hours and two taxis later we were together again. When I got to the hotel they mumbled something about a tour. This meant nothing to me until a few days later when the tour arrived, and I was politely kicked out.

Unbearable

At first I concentrated on the museums and castles, but after a day or two without speaking to a soul in a crowded city, it became unbearable.

And where were those his pitable Danes? My opinion is that most of them leave Copenhagen for the summer. There were tourists everywhere, speaking a dozen languages. Half of them were trying to convince the other half that they didn't speak Danish. I spent some ten minutes one day trying to tell an Icelandic couple how to get to the station, in German, until we finally tumbled to English.

Things really hit the bottom of the barrel when I found myself going to old, old Hollywood movies.

One of Family

But that was before dear little Fru Danielsen. There are hundreds of Fru Danielsen in Copenhagen who open their homes and their hearts to travellers, and for a very modest sum, you literally become one of the family. My life in Copenhagen started from the day I moved in. She fluttered about like a mother hen, and after my months of independent living, it felt glorious.

What did we talk about? Most of the time I had no idea, for Fru Danielsen spoke only Danish, but it was comforting, anyway. "Kapot" neatly explained a broken blind. The salient facts about baths, W.C., and meals did come through, however.

Another delightful Dane, Palle, took me in hand, too. He showed me the sights of Copenhagen, his home-town. We drove out Langelinie to see the famous "Little Mermaid," then along the sea road, past magnificent villas and quaint little cottages, to see the fleet of sailboats and launches anchored at Klampenborg, and then to the Tivoli Gardens—but how can I begin to explain the Tivoli?

We haven't anything remotely like it. Take our Beacon Hill Park, put in a huge concert hall where symphony orchestras and soloists appear nightly, front it with a promenade lined with a thousand lighted fountains, with magical dragon-flies suspended over dark pools, with glowing Chinese lanterns everywhere.

Exotic Gardens

Put in at least a dozen first-class restaurants with some tables inside, and some outside on the terraces overlooking the gardens. Put in a handstand, and an outdoor stage for clever circus acts, and a pantomime stage with professional ballet companies performing full comic ballets.

Then add a roller-coaster, a ferris-wheel, merry-go-rounds and other rides, all permanently located. Add a half dozen quaint pubs with amazing atmosphere, and put the whole thing into a Butchart setting with exotic gardens, statues, pools, bridges, huge old trees, and color and music everywhere. Then you'll have some idea of the Tivoli. It didn't happen overnight, it took more than 130 years to grow.

Protestants 'Forget' Virgin Mary

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—Pope John said Wednesday Protestants have forgotten the Virgin Mary.

"All of us wear a cross," the Pope told 10,000 pilgrims at a general audience at his summer residence. "Some wear one that is small and light and others bear crosses that are big and heavy."

"I wear a small golden cross on my chest like all bishops. I am fully aware that many of you have bigger burdens to carry."

"When Jesus Christ was given the cross to carry, and when he died on it, he was not alone. The Virgin Mary was with him."

"But the Protestants, who go on calling themselves Christians, have forgotten the Virgin Mary... it looks to us as if they have thrown her out of their house."

'EVILS OF ALCOHOL NOT IN SCRIPTURES'

HAMILTON (CP)—There is more scriptural support for moderation in drinking alcoholic beverages than for abstinence, a Lutheran chaplain said here Tuesday.

"Any abstinence that is based on alcohol as being 'evil,' that does not allow for moderation and results in judgment of all who do drink, is unwholesome and can't be reconciled with Scripture," declared Chaplain Gordon Grimm of the Willmar State Hospital for Alcoholics in Minnesota.

Speaking at the International Intercollegiate School of Alcohol Studies at McMaster University, Mr. Grimm said: "After giving objective consideration of the facts on beverage alcohol, drinking, alcoholism, moderation and abstinence incorporating the facts of science and truths of Scripture, then we must leave the individual free and responsible to make a decision."

World Peace Policy Sparks Church Rift

WHITEY, Ont. (CP)—The United Church of Canada is divided on how nations should arrive at world peace, a church evangelism conference was told here.

Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social service, said the difference of opinion exists between heads of the General Council and officials of the evangelism board.

"The General Council is in favor of co-operation with the British, the United States, the United Nations and NATO in maintaining a strong front in Europe and the Far East against Communism," Dr. Mutchmor said.

"The other group favors unilaterally renouncing nuclear warfare."

He also said Canada at the next meeting of the United Nations General Assembly should vote for the admission of Red China.

Registration Dates For High Schools

Greater Victoria high schools open next week for advance registration of new students in the area.

All newcomers entering Grades 7 to 12 should register at the nearest high school Wednesday, Thursday or Friday during the hours 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m.

New pupils in the elementary grades register Sept. 8, school opening day this year.

Some 21,000 pupils, an increase of 1,000, are expected to troop back to 46 schools staffed by 775 teachers, 40 more than last year.

Simplified procedures will be introduced for opening day this year.

All elementary pupils report to their Grade 1 to 6 classrooms at 9 a.m.

Junior and senior high school students will report to their classrooms on a staggered basis: Grades 7 and 10 at 9 a.m.; Grades 8 and 11 at 10 a.m.; and Grades 9 and 12 at 11 a.m.

Only exception to the schedule will be Esquimalt Junior and Senior High Schools where students will be on a shift system until completion later this fall of the new senior high school under construction at Skinner's Flats.

Grades 10 to 12 students at Esquimalt High School will report to classes at 9 a.m. Grades 7 and 8 will report at 1 p.m., and Grade 9 at 2 p.m.

Monty's Brother Dies

RYRBURG, South Africa (Reuters)—Rev. Colin Roger Montgomery, 58, brother of Viscount Montgomery and rector of Saint Stephens Church here, died suddenly Friday night while officiating at a boxing match. From 1948 to 1952 he was canon of the Arctic, stationed at Aklavik in Canada's Northwest Territories.

'High Pressure' Mormon Drive Fought In U.K.

CRAWLEY, England (AP)—A British clergyman said Tuesday night he is confident that a local church campaign will prevent the Mormon faith from getting a hold in this English town.

"The whole town now knows how Mormon missionaries are using high pressure American salesmanship to win converts," said Rector Clifford Earwaker of the Crawley parish church.

Mr. Earwaker, a Church of England parson, is one of the local clergy who have banded together in the Crawley Christian Council to wage an anti-Mormon campaign.

The council, embracing Roman Catholic and Protestant denominations, fired the first shot in its campaign last week-end with a booklet challenging Mormon teachings.

"We feel this town is particularly vulnerable to new religious pressures," Mr. Earwaker said.

Crawley, halfway between London and the south coast of England, was developed by the government after the war as a settlement area for London's excess population.

"Mormons seldom attempt to conduct their missions in long established towns which have their religious beliefs instilled by tradition," Mr. Earwaker said.

"Here, however, there are many unsettled young people—young couples who have not yet become attached to any religion."

"The persuasiveness of these Mormon missionaries can often work powerfully on uncommitted people."

"We consider the Mormon religion misguided."

"And our aim is to explain the reasons for this to ordinary people."

The British headquarters of the Mormon faith is Lingfield, 10 miles from Crawley. Local churchmen became alarmed recently at plans to build a Mormon temple in Crawley itself.

"But we have brought the whole matter out into the open now," Mr. Earwaker said. "People are discussing with each other the visits they have received from Mormons."

"I have no doubt our point of view will prevail."

Books Opened For College Night Classes

Victoria College Evening Division courses were announced today by director Professor R. T. Wallace.

As in past years, credit and non-credit courses will be offered.

Credit courses include education, English, geography, geology, history and psychology.

The college said that applications for these courses should be in before Sept. 14.

Purpose of the evening credit division is to enable Victoria residents to take courses carrying university credit while at home.

The term will begin Sept. 28 and ends April 30, 1960.

Among the non-credit courses offered are "Cruising With Safety," given by Royal Victoria Yacht Club member R. V. James, and "Ten Nights of Victoria and British Columbia History," given by historian and former newspaperman James K. Nesbitt.

Also included will be "Current International Problems," a review of current events given by visiting experts, including Dean F. Soward, Professor Charles Bourne, Dr. Cyril Bryner and Setty Pendakur.

Other non-credit courses will include a review of 12 authors by Professor C. Anthony Emery of the college; a series of award-winning films presented by the Victoria College Film Club; "Pictorial Photography," by James A. McVie, and two pre-school instruction courses.

A trio of bowmen silhouetted against the evening sky during practice on the field course. They are, from the left: Brian Usher, Canadian junior indoor champion; Bill Carnes and Bob Blades. Some members of the club were absent on summer vacations when the pictures on this page were taken. Among these members are Frank Jones, who placed second in Canada at the tournament last year, and his wife, Lil, a B.C. and Canadian champion.

Young member of an enthusiastic family of archers is 13-year-old Maureen Usher, shown here pulling arrows from the target.

The Bow Still Sings Its Song!

Family teams are a part of the local archery club. Here Bill Hogg draws a bead on a target while wife Beverley shows young son Jamie how Daddy does it.

Vancouver Island ladies champion Lil Simpson shows good shooting form as she aims at mythical bird flying high in the evening sky.

Victoria has no Sherwood Forest, but archers in the city still practice the bowman's ancient art. Right now the Victoria Bowman Club, formed in 1950, is practicing for the British Columbia Archery Championships and regional Canadian championships to be held on Labor Day weekend, Sept. 4 to 7, on the field course, situated in a wooded area, south of Trans-Canada Highway at Admirals Road, and at Hampton Park. Entries are expected from up-island and mainland archery clubs. Regular club shoots take place Wednesday evenings and Sunday afternoons on the field course in good weather and in Fraser Street Hall after October 1.

Testing their bows for tension are Fred and Doris Usher, two of the live wire members of the Victoria Bowman Club. They enjoy archery because the whole family participates. "It's a real family sport," they tell you. Fred is president of club.

Vic Powley was taking his turn at scoring for fellow archers when this picture was taken.

In friendly argument around the target are, from the left: Bob Copeman, president of the B.C. Archery Association; Betty Thain, secretary of the Victoria Club; Bess Copeman, treasurer, and Ian Thain, target captain. Bess and Bob Copeman, charter members of the local club, were very active in archery in Edmonton. Betty and Ian Thain learned to love archery in Scotland. They have only been out from their homeland a little over a year.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Lunch Box With Thermos
For Under Three Dollars

By PENNY SAVER

Won't be long now till you wave goodbye to your youngsters on their way to school. Whether they're starting out for the very first year, or are veterans at this school business, a good substantial lunch is a must, always. A thermos is one way of giving them good hot soup for chilly fall days, or keeping chocolate milk good and cold—and delicious.

I've found good sturdy lunch boxes—with English vacuum thermos clipped inside. Painted with exciting sport scenes, cowboys or colorful tartans, these are a marvelous buy at only $2.98. (Refills for the thermos are available, too.)

Quite new on the lunch box scene are polyethylene type. These are light, resistant to acids, and odorless. Side, dome fastenings prevent gaping and warping of the unbreakable plastic. Box can be carried with handle, or handy shoulder strap. Price is $1.35 (without thermos).

"Schoolboy with his satchel and shining morning face, creeping like snail unwillingly to school!"

Times haven't really changed much since Shakespeare's time, after all. The satchel is still carried by shining, clean-faced youngsters to school in 1959. I've found bright-colored tartan school bags that are the descendant of the satchel the bard himself might have carried when as a boy he toddled off, unwillingly, to school.

Twentieth-century-type satchel costs $1.49.

Measurements Are Real
Guide to Perfect Figure

While it is important for health to maintain the ideal weight for your height, build and age, your measurements are the real guide to the perfection of your figure.

Naturally all of your measurements will be too large if you are overweight, and usually these extra pounds pick on one special spot. With some women it is the waist, with others the hips, thigh or abdomen bulge in an especially annoying way.

Here are some directions for you to remember when measuring yourself. Do not draw the tape measure too tight. On the other hand do not have it slack. Try to hold it the same way every time you measure. Do not allow your optimism to make you pull it tighter when taking the "after" measurement.

When taking any measurement be sure that the tape passes straight around your body. Do not let it dip or sag in any one place. Either wear no brassiere or be sure to wear the same one every time you measure your bust. The tape should pass around the largest part of the breasts.

Take your waist measurement at your natural waistline. Measure around the largest part of the abdomen and the hips for those records.

If you would like to have my short routine of exercise planned especially for women, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 19. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

FUR'S FASHION THIS FALL

which is also in the Paterson collection. Dress has a modified version of his bell sleeve. "Viceroy" is Norman Hartnell's name for this outfit pictured at right. Long jacket in smooth caramel wool tops a tunic dress, giving a tiered effect. Wide brimmed hat and stole are in toting fox. (Mirropic Photo.)

DEAR ABBY...

A Dog's Life!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my wife and her dog. We've been married 14 months. I'm a simple, hard-working guy of 22 and she is 22. I bought her a pup because she always wanted one and her parents wouldn't let her have one.

Well, she doesn't know the first thing about training a dog or taking care of it. That dog hasn't had a bath since we've had him and he smells like nobody's business.

He has the run of the apartment and you can imagine what the place looks like. I work odd hours and can't train the dog myself. She even forgets to feed him. I can't reason with my wife. She cries when I mention giving it away. Can you help me?

DESPERATE. DEAR DESPERATE: A dog who hasn't had a bath in over a year must be even more desperate than you. If your childish bride wants to keep the dog, insist that she learn to care for him—and see to it that she does. If she refuses to learn, or is negligent—give the poor animal a break and find him a good home.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's first wife passed away six years ago. She is buried in Winnipeg, where his grown children live. He has a double marker on her grave. Also a plot right next to hers with his name already on the marker. All that's missing is the date of his death.

This was done before I came into the picture so I'm not blaming anyone. But now I am his wife. I don't want him buried there. Who am I going to be buried by?

SECOND WIFE. DEAR SECOND: Yours is one of the difficult problems a woman faces when she marries a widower. These arrangements are obviously the result of a promise made long before you came into the picture. Don't attempt to change anything. Express the desire to be buried near your own parents, if possible.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl and have started to get grey hair. What I am worried about is can worrying cause grey hair? What can I do about it? GREY AT 15.

DEAR GREY: Worrying does not cause grey hair but it can cause other for more serious difficulties. Those who grey early in life usually inherit the tendency from their parents.

You can take the problem to a good hairdresser—or you can leave it alone and enjoy that distinguished look. I recommend the latter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEARTSICK MOM: Tell your daughter you read her diary and give her a chance to account for her behavior. Keeping quiet eliminates all possibilities of helping her, and this girl certainly needs help.

What's your problem? For a personal reply write to Abby, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Brown of 1150 Roslyn Road, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Angus Macdonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Macdonald of Vancouver. The wedding will take place at 8 p.m. on Friday, September 25 in St. John's Anglican Church with Canon George Biddle officiating. (Photos by Kandid Kamera.)

Couple Married Today
To Be Missionaries

Standard baskets of yellow gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated Central Baptist Church this afternoon for the marriage of Doreen Margaret Robbie and Roy Norman Hodges. Dr. J. B. Rowell officiated.

The couple will live in Victoria until March then they will go to Nigeria, W. Africa, to do missionary work. The groom has already spent 3½ years there.

Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Robbie and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hodges, all of this city.

A white, ballerina-length, satin brocade gown featuring a sweetheart neckline and lily-point sleeves was chosen by the bride. A double tulle held her finger-tip veil and she carried yellow roses and maiden-hair fern. She was given in marriage by her father, John Robbie. During the signing of the register Miss June Austing sang "The Wedding Prayer."

Maid of honor, Miss Mary Dewar, and bridesmaid, Miss Helen Robbie, sister of the bride, wore identical dresses of yellow taffeta brocade and carried colonial bouquets of chrysanthemums.

Junior bridesmaid, Miss Lela Bailey, cousin of the bride, wore white tulle and carried a small colonial bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums. Brother of the bride, Master Philip Robbie, acted as page boy.

Mother of the bride wore a two-piece silk dress in yellow and brown shades with a corsage of white roses. Groom's mother chose navy crepe and lace with a corsage of pink roses.

Russell Swanson was best man and Jack Robbie, David Robbie, Eugene Benner and Clifford Salmon ushered.

William Hick proposed the bridal toast at the reception in Central Baptist Church hall. A three-tiered wedding cake topped by a white lace bust holding yellow roses was cut by the couple.

Bride chose a black and white check suit with white accessories and a yellow rosebud corsage for the honeymoon trip up Island.

Hemlines Up
But Waists
Going Down!

PARIS (Reuters).—Short hemlines and a slightly lower waistline marked the first press showing of the Balenciaga fashion collection in Paris this week.

The suits come with wider skirts mounted in pleats over the hips, paired with boxy and bloused jackets.

Jacket lengths range from waist to hip. They have high, round, collarless necklines, double-breasted closings and broad shoulders marked by deep-set raglan sleeves.

Cocktail dresses star a new transformational bark, with separately cut panels set on side of straps that deep décolleté like a Venetian blisc.

Hats are less fanciful than past seasons. They star cloches and bowls made of tweed or coat fabric for day wear and some big shakos and chechias of long-haired fox fur, and tiny jewelled topknots or chignon cages for the evening

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle

Hurdle Through In Three?

In the design of this variation of the age-old but very fascinating maze puzzle you will note that dots appear in groups of threes. Each dot represents a hurdle. A runner contestant about to enter the maze must observe this rule: If he passes any one hurdle of a group of three, he must pass all three. Another rule is that channels once traversed must not be used again. Object, of course, is to "run" through the maze from entrance at top left to exit at bottom right.

Passing through all four groups of hurdles is not necessary. If you can complete the any group of hurdles that's assignment without passing permissible, too.

POSER IS A SIDE-SPLITTER

This double equilateral triangle (bottom), shows an arrangement of six parallel lines each containing six circles. How quickly can you add three more lines to form one more equilateral triangle in such a way that with the addition of three more circles at intersecting points, nine lines of six circles each will be obtained? Letters indicated in diagram are for purposes of identifying lines in solution stated below. No fair peeking before attempting the problem, of course.

PUZZLER'S JINGLES

JANGLE THE BRAIN
A puzzler with a penchant for poetry poses the following verse problems:

- There was an old man who said, "Gee, I can't cube the cube root of three; Though seven comes plenty Still it might come to twenty; Tell me what the answer might be."
- Five times seven and seven times three Add to my age and it will be As far above six nines and four As twice my age exceeds a score.
- A man who is twice as old as his fiancée Was seventy years old when they took their vows Ten years ago, 'neath the hickory boughs; That would make her how old now?

BRAIN TEASER
Hold onto your hats while you breeze through these this and that's, if it help: What percentage of this and that is this and that and half of this and that?

ANSWERS:
1. 100% (One hundred and fifty per cent)
2. 100% (One hundred and fifty per cent)
3. 100% (One hundred and fifty per cent)

OH, SAY NOT SO

"A digit in the pastry" would be a less familiar way of expressing the time-worn phrase, "A finger in the pie." How many of the following clichés do you recognize in similarly disguised phrases?
1. The lard's in the flames.
2. A plume in his headgear.
3. A flare in the vessel.
4. The fruit of his orb.
5. A playing card in the perforation.

- A sewing-tool in proven-der.
- A terminal member in the tomb.
- A situation in the spot-light.
- A cleft in unity.
- An insect in the salve.

EXERCISE FOR WORD

Three key words having more than half their letters missing appear across the tops of the diagrams above. You are asked to restore the missing letters and identify the words, using given letters as clues.

To begin, copy each letter now showing in the empty blank or blanks directly below it. Then, using a system of trial and error, insert additional letters that will serve to form short words in the remaining squares of the lower diagrams. Trial letters must function in an entire vertical row. That is, when inserting a letter to make a word, insert it in all vertical blanks.

TRACE THE PUSSYCAT'S ROUTE

The pussycat of an old familiar nursery rhyme is shown setting out on a famous adventure at right. How long will the journey take? To find out, trace through this maze with a pencil beginning at bottom left. First take the path to the bridge, point 1; proceed to the queen, point 2; then to the frightened mouse, point 3; through the woods, point 4; and return to the starting point via indicated path.

Your way is restricted to paths shown, of course, without retracing steps. The nursery rhyme on which this maze is based begins: "Pussycat, Pussycat, where have you been?" Can you complete it?

THIS IS SOME WORD
Can you name an 8-letter word that has KST in the middle in the beginning, and at the end?
Answer: Inland—see the puzzle.

BIBLICAL RIDDLES

Why was the giant Goliath very much astonished when David him him in the head with a stone?

How many wives are allowed a man by the prayer book?

THINK TWICE BEFORE ANSWERING
What number is as much greater than 36 as it is less than 94? Don't jump to the conclusion that you can find out by dividing the difference between 36 and 94.

Score of Boats Join Hunt For Father and Two Sons

VANCOUVER—A large-scale search was started today for a father who police believe was drowned in Service Inlet, 60 miles north of here, in an unsuccessful attempt to save his two sons.

Seventeen fishboats plus several smaller craft joined RCMP in searching for William Marshall, about 50, and his two sons, Billy, 8, and Donny, 7.

RCMP said Marshall left the government wharf at Egmont Friday in a small boat loaded with cedar shakes which he was to use on the home he was building a mile away.

His boat was found shortly afterwards, floating empty with bales of shakes in the water around it.

Police said they believe the weight of the shakes forced the boat below the water level, throwing the trio into the water. The father apparently attempted to save his non-swimming sons and was dragged down by the outgoing tide.

WAGE OFFER UPPED
VANCOUVER — Electrical contractors increased their wage offer to 16½ cents over two years from 10 cents Friday in an effort to stave off a threatened strike by 1,100 electricians.

The electricians are seeking a 24-cent increase over two years.

4 FLIERS SAFE
PRINCE GEORGE — Four men missing on a flight in north-central British Columbia were found Friday by search planes from the Prince George Flying Club.

Charlie Simmons, the pilot, and passengers John Fry, Clint Geddes and Bill Wallace were found uninjured by their downed craft near Great Beaver Lake, 50 miles northwest of here. Their light plane apparently ran out of fuel.

PLANE IN SEARCH
VANCOUVER — An RCAF Otter left here today for the Grisey Lake area northeast of Kamloops to join the search for a fisherman lost for three weeks.

The plane was prevented from flying to the search area by bad weather Friday. The weather cleared overnight.

Roy Chappel is believed to have become lost in heavy bush about 60 miles north-east of Kamloops. He entered the woods with a friend Aug. 8 but failed to show up at a designated rendezvous point.

An intensive ground search by RCMP failed to turn up any trace of him and police asked the RCAF to send in a plane with a two-man parachute team.

CD RECRUITS SOUGHT

VANCOUVER — The Canadian army reserve will campaign this fall to recruit 900 high school students on the British Columbia mainland for Saturday training in civil defence, it was announced today.

A minimum quota will be set for each of the 29 reserve units on the mainland officials of No. 24 militia group headquarters said.

An army statement said concentration on the student training program "follows success of the young soldier summer course this year, when more than 150 high school students from 16 to 19 years, representing 13 militia units, took part in a six-week program."

SENATOR FROM ALGERIA ASSASSINATED

VICHY, France (AP) — A member of the French Senate from Algeria was shot dead Friday night on a Vichy Street by two Algerians. A bystander also died in the hail of bullets. Three other persons were wounded.

The senator, Cherif Benhabyles, 68, died with five bullet wounds.

An angry crowd quickly set out after the two gunmen and one was caught.

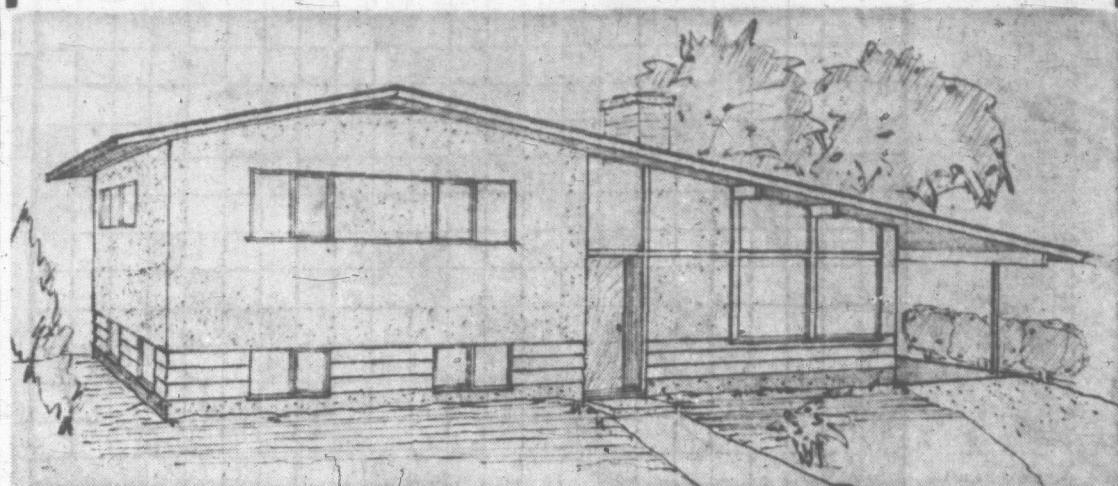

Benhabyles was looked upon as a leader of a small group of moderately independent Senators from Algeria who favor a large measure of independence for the Algerian people.

Stamp Smuggler Fined

NEW YORK (AP) — Kurt Weishaupt, former president of the American Stamp Dealers' Association, was fined $5,000 Friday after pleading guilty to a charge of smuggling $33,000 worth of Chinese Communist stamps into the United States in a violation of an act prohibiting trading with an enemy.

Leading Men of Law Gather at Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leading legal figures from Canada, United States, France and Britain are gathering here for the week-long annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association, opening Monday.

Its discussions will range from lotteries laws and civil rights to divorce and the usefulness of injunctions in labor disputes.

Experts in various fields will participate in panel discussions on rule of law in a changing world, the place of government in development of energy resources, taxation in real estate transactions, family law, expropriation, divorce and gambling, bingos and lotteries. At the same time, other sections of the association will delve into the technicalities and procedures involved in the application of Canada's laws.

This takes up a good portion of the convention time and from the lawyers' standpoint may be of more significance than the panel discussions since the procedural study may come changes in the country's laws that improve their application.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be on hand to address the association's annual dinner, and Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, former Liberal prime minister and honorary life president of the Bar Association, is scheduled to visit in mid-week.

Ross L. Malone, president of the American Bar Association; Lord Parker of Waddington, the Lord Chief Justice of England; and Albert Brunois, a prominent member of the Paris bar, also are among the convention guests.

Hospitals Going Broke On BCHIS Financing

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—The board of directors of 430-bed Royal Columbia Hospital said here Friday unless the hospital receives more financial aid it will have an operating deficit of $200,000 this year.

Hospital spokesmen said the hospital's financial position is "worse than ever before" and is "reaching the breaking point."

In a statement the board of directors said the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service must provide more financial aid.

Meanwhile, St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver denied a report that it faces serious financial difficulties because it is not receiving enough money from the hospital insurance service.

A Vancouver paper in a front page story today said St. Paul's owes more than $70,000 and cannot borrow money for a new laundry and laboratory because it cannot get a definite commitment from BCHIS.

The Province said a survey of B.C. hospitals showed some were going steadily into debt because of inadequate BCHIS grants for operating expenses. At least six hospitals, including Royal Jubilee in Victoria, St. John in Vancouver, War Memorial at Williams Lake, Lady Minto in Ashcroft and Arrow Lakes at Nakusp, were spending equipment replacement allowances to help cover operating debts despite an urgent need for new equipment.

Royal Jubilee Hospital officials were not available today for comment on the reported deficits.

EXPLOSION INJURES PAIR

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Two youths were taken to hospital, one severely burned, after a wall near a fireplace early today.

Gerry Glowackey was dragged from the burning home by firemen and was in only fair condition with burns. Ross Leonard was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

DEATH, NOT 'PARADISE' MAY BE SAILOR'S FATE

HALIFAX, N.S. (UPI)—Hungarian immigrant Andre Yavorscik today stubbornly stuck to a leaky boat in which he is sailing to an "elusive paradise" despite police warnings that he could be sailing to his death.

An RCMP boat drew alongside the rolling, do-it-yourself yacht Yester and its crew pleaded with Yavorscik to abandon the craft.

But the 45-year-old paradise-seeker who has travelled only 80 miles since leaving Halifax on Aug. 14 turned a deaf ear to the Mounties' plea.

East, West Close On Arms Study

LONDON (AP)—Communications are flashing between Moscow and the capitals of the three big Western powers on plans for reviving general disarmament talks, diplomatic informants said today.

Through written and oral communications relayed through embassies, the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union are working toward setting up a 10-nation body to seek ways of halting the world arms race.

Thus far, the sources said, responses from the Soviet side are dovetailing with suggestions coming from the Western capitals. East and West would have equal representation in the proposed new negotiating group.

Separate arms studies now are under way or will begin shortly in the capitals of the Western powers.

Ike Opens Talks With Mac

WENDOVER, Eng. (AP)—In the serene peace of the English countryside, President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan turned today to a discussion of Western strategy in cold war negotiations with Russia.

The U.S. leader, preparing for his talks next month with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, arrived shortly after midday for a weekend of conferences at Macmillan's secluded country estate, Chequers.

Crowds greeted his return from an overnight respite with the Royal Family in the Scottish Highlands.

Cheers and cries of "I like Ike" echoed as Eisenhower stepped from an RAF Comet jet airliner at Benson air base—a base he knew well from his days as the Allied commander in wartime.

Eisenhower beamed at the cheering crowd.

At the entrance to Chequers a commotion was caused by half a dozen demonstrators of the League of British Empire Loyalists.

Two men and a woman stretched a banner across the road on which was the legend: "The Empire League wants Britain to be independent."

Ike appeared relaxed and rested as he left Balmoral Castle accompanied by Prince Philip on the 50-m.p.h. drive to Aberdeen's Dyce Airport, where he boarded the Comet.

He bade a warm farewell to the Queen, clasped her hand for several seconds and spoke rapidly to her, thanking her for her hospitality.

The Queen, Princess Margaret and Prince Charles and Princess Anne waved goodbye until the car disappeared from sight.

Before leaving, Eisenhower spent 10 minutes posing with the Royal Family for photographers on the grounds of the 24,000-acre royal estate.

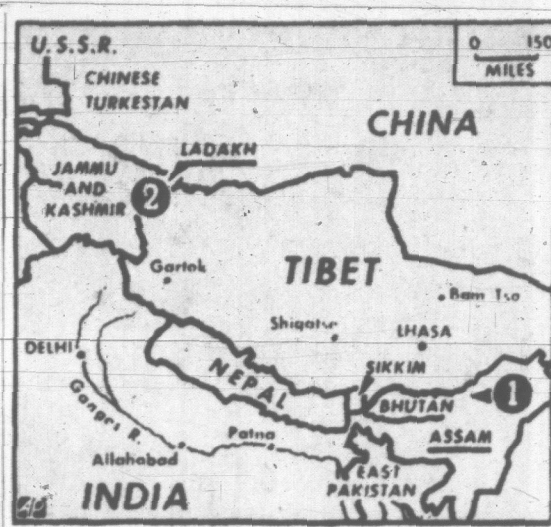

He posed for one shot standing between 10-year-old Prince Charles and nine-year-old Princess Anne.

The president patted Anne's golden curls and asked: "Are you going to learn to cook?"

The princess, wearing the kilt, nodded shyly.

The Queen laughed and said: "I will send you some samples."

"If you don't I will be bombarding you with letters," Eisenhower replied.

CLASHES ON FRONTIER

Chinese Communist troops are reported to have crossed from Tibet into Indian territory at two widely separated frontier spots: (1) in India's northeast border area, and (2) in a remote sector of the Ladakh area of Kashmir.

Orders to Shoot 'If Necessary'

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Indian cabinet has ordered the army to rush troops into duty along the 1,500-mile northern frontier to prevent further crossing of Communist Chinese troops, it was reported authoritatively today.

Indian troops being rushed to the area have been told to shoot at Chinese soldiers if necessary, it was learned.

The government took the action following reports of large concentrations of Chinese troops along the frontier, stretching from Ladakh to the northeast frontier agency area.

Border police were unable to cope with the Communists, who, it was disclosed in parliament Friday, have clashed with Indian forces in eastern Kashmir and the northeast frontier agency over the past two months.

Red troops have been infiltrating and making probes all along the frontier and it was believed the Communists had placed more than 40,000 troops along the border, compared with a mere 2,000 armed Indian border police.

It was reported in Calcutta that Chinese troops were concentrated along the border of Tibet menacing India, Bhutan and Nepal.

The reports, relayed from Shillong, headquarters for India's northeastern frontier agency, said the area is tense.

CCF Won't 'Water Down' Socialism to Please Labor

WINNIPEG (CP)—CCF Commons Leader Hazen Argue said today he knows of no intention among CCF chiefs to water down their socialist ideas to get support for a new left-of-centre party.

Mr. Argue, who would probably wind up as head of the new party being discussed by the Canadian Labor Congress leadership and the remnants of the CCF, was addressing a political seminar sponsored jointly by the CLC and the CCF.

"No one I know is watering down CCF policy," he said to about 300 delegates.

He added that the CCF is not putting forward the theory of nationalization of industry for nationalization's sake alone but that if it were necessary for the public good, "a larger proportion of monopoly business must be brought under public control."

Mr. Argue said Trans-Canada Air Lines is a good example of

Nehru Told Parliament of Clashes

Prime Minister Nehru told a shocked parliament in New Delhi Friday that Chinese soldiers had clashed with Indian troops both in eastern Kashmir and in northeast India in July and August.

Government officials said afterward that as far as was known no Chinese troops were on Indian soil at the moment.

In New Delhi, however, it was reported that the army had received orders to dislodge Chinese troops believed still occupying the Longju border outpost four miles inside India's northeast frontier in the Assam area.

Crack Indian troops trained in jungle and mountain fighting had moved into the region and were within two days march of Longju, the reports said. The Indian force was described as "large," but its exact size was undisclosed.

It was understood Indian military leaders had set up an advance operational command to handle the troop deployment.

Considerable Chinese aerial activity has been noticeable over the border area for the past few days. There were reports the Chinese had dropped paratroopers at their frontier outposts.

It was learned that Air Marshal S. Mukherjee, chief of the air force, had been ordered to cut short a visit to Cairo and return at once.

Indian security forces in Calcutta today tightened their watch on the city's two Chinatowns which comprise the largest Chinese population anywhere in India.

The newspaper Hindustan Standard reported that the Chinese troops were equipped with modern weapons.

"The situation is fast developing into an explosive one," it said.

Unconfirmed reports said some Tibetan refugees who had been used for building Indian roads in the wild north-eastern frontier agency this summer had disappeared.

The reports said it now appeared they actually were Communist spies who mixed with bona fide refugees during the flight from Communist oppression in Tibet last spring.

CCF Won't 'Water Down' Socialism to Please Labor

HAZEN ARGUE, CCF Commons Leader

"I expect that the candidates of the new party will be able to get very considerable support from farmers across Canada. If there were a federal election now, the candidates either of the CCF or the new party would win more support in the four western provinces than all other parties combined."

Talking about suggestions that the congress might be trying to "gobble up" the CCF, Mr. Argue said:

"That's nonsense."

He said he hopes that from the present move for an affiliation between the two bodies there will come "members and at least some of the financial resources" to get labor's message across to the country.

He asked why there have been complaints about the idea of labor members contributing to the financial resources of the proposed new party.

"The back room people for years have been putting money into the other parties."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The emergency telephone number 996 is already in Victoria—installed in the Legislative Buildings.

And Works Minister W. N. Chant believes the telephone company would be well-advised to "set it up for the rest of the province."

"When it is a matter of life or death people get tense and excited and can't remember numbers," he said. "It is urgent some easy-to-remember number be instituted in B.C."

Herbert Hodgson, 631 Baxter, was fined $15 in Sidney RCMP court Friday for operating a boat without lifebelts, contrary to the Small Boats Act.

Driver Charged In Bump Tussle

David Lynn Ready, 25, of Victoria, pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of assaulting William Edward Teele, 50, of 2201 Spring, after their cars collided at Balmora and Quadra at 7.45 p.m. Friday.

He was remanded to Monday for sentence on this charge, and for trial on a second charge, of causing a disturbance on Yates Street, to which he pleaded not guilty.

'Great Show' Pledged For Chest Publicity

BIG INDIAN FESTIVAL OFF

The fall Indian festival which was scheduled to be held at Maple Bank Park, Esquimalt, on Sept. 6, has been cancelled due to fire hazards.

Chief John Albany of the Songhees band said the high grass in the park constituted a fire hazard for the buildings on the property.

"We haven't got any fire equipment," he said. "If a grass fire started it could cause serious damage to adjoining property."

The chief also announced that Chatham, Sea Bird and Discovery Islands, all Indian reserves, were closed to the public because of the danger of fire.

Coasting Truck Catches on Fire

A small rear-engine laundry truck suffered $1,000 damage when the motor caught fire in the 200 block of Atkins Road at Langford Friday at 1.35 p.m.

Driver Norm Knudsen said he coasted down a hill after the engine stalled and Langford firemen said a spark may have ignited gasoline when the engine flooded.

The blaze destroyed a spare tire and burned the engine compartment and rear wheels before it was checked by firemen.

Officials of Economy Steam Laundry, 607 John, owners of the truck, said there was no damage to clothing.

Representatives of 22 agencies in Victoria's Community Chest Friday pledged support of this year's campaign publicity committee in what one official termed "the greatest show of Red Feather strength I've ever seen."

But he was quick to add that the Chest "is only as strong as citizens make it."

The remarks came after a mass Spencehouse meeting which spawned several publicity ideas for the $325,000 campaign.

Publicity committee chairman Ray Wormald, pointed out people wanted to know how their contributions would be spent, adding it was partly the agencies' responsibility to publicize their activities as widely as possible.

Spokesmen for press, radio and television promised support.

Chest president Justin Harbord underlined the need for repetitive publicity—"I would like to see at least a story a day from each news medium"—noting that he was taking a quieter role this year than the one he played in 1958's campaign.

Committee member Hugh Curtis agreed that, "because we haven't got Justin Harbord to make the news for us this year," more publicity effort was needed for the new campaign to make up the lack.

Agency spokesmen showed keen awareness of the task and several added new names to the previously flagging "Miss Red Feather" contest.

The campaign, which has at least two stories a week, "If you don't care, who will?" for its slogan, gets under way Sept. 25.

Legitimate Role at Last

By TONY DICKASON

The many men who are Ferdinand Waldo Demara, that potpourri of personalities, now have a role that might appeal to him more than his previous innumerable character kick-about.

He'll be acting legitimately for a change, and for reputedly heavy change.

The affable, big and highly intelligent perennial impostor today was signed for his first motion picture role. He will portray a doctor in the Allied Artists' picture, "The Hypnotic Eye."

It won't be his first portrayal of a doctor, by any means.

The RCN knows this, as do a former Times reporter and a present Times reporter.

The reporters exposed his incredible career.

Lieut. Alan Jenkins, aboard a Canadian destroyer off Korea, turned out a publicity release which told how Surgeon-Lieutenant Joseph Cyr, by his operating coolness and skill, saved 19 badly wounded soldiers. Lieut. Cyr's home town was given as Grand Falls, N.B.

It happened I was staying in a hotel in Grand Falls and that I telephoned the Maritime newspaper then employing me. The editor asked me to check on Dr. Cyr.

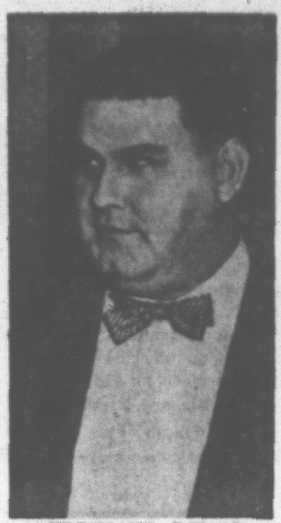

It was a direct enough request, but circumstances started to look quaint when I found another Dr. Joseph Cyr right in town, and his credentials had been stolen.

It turned out Dr. Cyr knew a "Brother John" at a nearby farm monastery, who had claimed to be a doctor in civilian life.

When Brother John disappeared, so did Dr. Cyr's documents.

A check-back through the monastery elicited nothing but a lack of knowledge, but with the facts garnered through Dr. Cyr, the expose of a brilliant but conflicting character was underway.

Two former Times' men, 8,000 miles apart, put him on the road to fame and quickly yanked him off.

Tourist Boom Record Upped by 16 Per Cent

SAANICH 4-H TEAMS SCORE PNE VICTORIES

Two outstanding victories have been scored at the PNE by Greater Victoria 4-H Club entries.

Karen Cronk, of the Sooke-Sidney-Saanich 4-H Beef Club, won the grand aggregate championship in stock judging, and the Saanich 4-H Goat Club emerged as B.C.'s top team in the demonstration contest.

It was a repeat win for the Saanich team, which included John Howe and Paul Howe of Saanichton, and Rose Couling, Sooke. They survived a series of elimination contests to reach finals at the PNE, where they competed against teams from all other types of clubs.

It is the only 4-H goat club in Canada. Karen Cronk is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Cronk, 4316 Blenkinsop Road.

Labor Day Brings Year's Last Rush

Labor Day weekend next week will provide the year's last major shot-in-the-arm for booming tourism here.

The industry is already in better-than-healthy shape.

Travel to Greater Victoria this year has reached an unprecedented high.

Some travel officials put it as high as 16 per cent above former records.

Forecast, with opening of the new ferry terminal at Sidney, is for an even greater influx of visitors next year.

"With the greater facilities pending, there is no doubt that more persons will visit this area than ever before," Charles E. Blaney of Blaney's Travel Service Ltd.

"The service has to be there before people can take advantage of it."

MORE THAN 1958

Statistics so far available showed that visitors here were more numerous than during Centennial year, though the ferry strike of 1958 cut into business.

For example at the Port of Sidney during July, 3,875 foreign cars entered carrying 14,387 passengers. This compares with the 1957 figure—used as a basis because of the ferry strike last year—of 3,193 foreign cars carrying 11,153 passengers.

Canadian autos through the port totalled 1,639 during July this year, up from 1,184 for the same July in 1957.

Strongly indicative of the increased tourist business are comparisons taken with entries five years ago.

$10 EACH DAY

For July, 1955, there were only 2,673 foreign cars through the Port of Sidney with 9,486 passengers. Canadian cars totalled a mere 996.

Value to the economy can be realized by a rough rule-of-thumb: tourists spend an average of $10 for each day here. Average stay is 2 1/2 days. The Port Angeles-Victoria service in July carried 22,579 passengers and 5,896 vehicles to Victoria. For the same month in 1958, 17,709 passengers were carried and 5,806 vehicles.

EXTRA PLANES

Tourist inroads hit their peak in mid-August, and the slump is already being felt. Next boost will be Labor Day weekend, and then visitors will mostly consist of travellers untied by children and school obligations.

Meanwhile, TCA has announced it will bring in four-engine North Stars for the Labor Day traffic, and fly extra sections to meet passenger demands.

IWA Truce Plan 'News' to Wicks

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said today he knew nothing of reports that a tentative plan for settlement had been worked out in the eight-week-old coast loggers' strike.

"As far as I am concerned there has been no settlement and mediation is continuing," he said.

"Nothing about a settlement has come to my office."

He added that he had not received a report from mediator Dr. John Deutsch following two weeks of talks with both sides in the pay dispute.

The two-week period ends today, but the minister declined to say whether the mediation attempt would be continued and Dr. Deutsch given more time to reach a settlement.

Earlier the minister said the mediator would "probably" get more time if he asked for it.

Mr. Wicks was commenting on a Vancouver story that Dr. Deutsch suggested a settlement of 20 cents an hour in two yearly sums of 10 cents.

According to the report, the suggestion was "only at the discussion stage and there is no indication either party will accept it."

But in Vancouver, Syd Thompson, president of IWA local 1-85, said the union would "never buy" a 20 cent boost over two years.

If Dr. Deutsch is toying with the idea that 20 cents will settle the strike, he is wrong. The union wants 34 cents an hour more, in one year.

Dr. Deutsch could not be reached this morning. His home telephone, disconnected a few days ago following press bombardment, was still out of operation today.

EDUCATION CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

Plastic Bag Safety Drive Hailed by Dry Cleaners

A Victoria dry-cleaning firm official today applauded a campaign by B.C. Safety Council to educate parents and children in the safe use of plastic film.

The film, used extensively as wrapping for foods and to cover newly-cleaned clothes, has been responsible for the deaths of several children in Canada, and the U.S. in recent weeks.

Aim of the council is not to prohibit its use, but to teach people to use it safely and then store or destroy it.

"The advantages of plastic film have been so well established that the prohibiting of its use does not seem justified," the council noted.

The statement was greeted as "very sensible" by a spokesman for one city dry-cleaning firm, who said he had been "plagued with demands that we stop using the stuff."

Moist Weather Puts Damper On Fire Threat

2 Island Blazes Out But Guarded

Cool, moist weather, which brought high humidity to this area, put the damper on two district forest fires overnight and left them well under control today.

Ranger Ron Jones at Langford said a 30-acre fire near Prospect Lake was guarded today by 64 men with two bulldozers, but is considered safe.

A 35-acre fire at Glen Lake, which broke out a week ago, is on a patrol basis with from four to 10 men on duty.

It started at 2.30 p.m. last Saturday and blazed rapidly through scrub fir and arbutus, but was brought under control the same evening. Crews have been standing guard on it ever since.

The Prospect Lake fire broke out shortly after 11 a.m. Friday at a garbage dump on Hartland Road. It was aided by a strong southwest wind, but was brought under control by 6.30 p.m.

Firefighters, however, are taking no chances on outbreaks.

"We have to be careful despite favorable conditions at present," Mr. Jones said. "A change of wind can drop the humidity rapidly, and the moisture content of the material on the ground actually is critically low."

More relief is expected tonight, with the approach of cloud caused by a weather disturbance north of here. Sunday will be cloudy with sunny periods, according to the weatherman, and there will be a "slight" chance of light showers. Temperatures will range between 52 and 67 degrees.

COSTS UP $22,000

In a survey of the provincial forest fire situation, the B.C. Forest Service has announced that fire-fighting costs in Vancouver Forest District, which includes the Island, jumped almost $22,000 this week while costs in the Nelson district were up by $34,000.

There were 56 new fires during the week, 35 of them in Vancouver district.

Seventy-nine fires were extinguished during the week. Thirty-seven were still burning throughout the province Friday morning.

Since the start of the 1959 fire season 1,944 blazes have been reported, and forest service fire-fighting expenditures stand at $636,079.

At this time last year—the worst fire year in British Columbia's history—there had been 3,968 fires costing $3,867,691.

The general fire hazard throughout the province lies between low and moderate.

Typhoon Hits Formosa, 6 Die

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Typhoon Joan killed six persons and injured five in the suburbs of Taipei tonight as the worst storm in years bore down on this Nationalist Chinese island.

The typhoon, with centre winds said to have a velocity of 190 miles an hour, was expected to strike the west coast between Hualien and Taitung late tonight.

A state of emergency was declared throughout the island, already stricken by a big flood and an earthquake this month.

Lashing rains and winds swept Formosa as the 400-mile-wide storm advanced on a path that would take it to the Chinese mainland between Quemoy and the Matsu Islands.

The first casualties were from collapsed houses.

Police removed 32,000 persons from low areas in Taipei and another 6,700 from Keelung, the island's northern port. Residents were routed from their homes and sent to schools, theatres, and public buildings.

U.S. military clubhouses in Taipei were stocked with emergency supplies in case any of the 10,000 Americans stationed here are forced to leave their homes.

Tidal wave warnings were issued for the east coast.

East, West Close On Arms Study

LONDON (AP) — Communications are flashing between Moscow and the capitals of the three big Western powers on plans for reviving general disarmament talks, diplomatic informants said today.

Through written and oral communications relayed through embassies, the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union are working toward setting up a 10-nation body to seek ways of halting the world arms race.

Thus far, the sources said, responses from the Soviet are dovetailing with suggestions coming from the Western capitals. East and West would have equal representation in the proposed new negotiating group.

Separate arms studies now are under way or will begin shortly in the capitals of the Western powers.

The informants assumed these would lead to the establishment of a joint Western study group to pool the ideas of the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Canada on the subject.

Then, if all went well, the representatives of these Western powers could expect to sit down with negotiators from the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Albania nearly next year — probably in Geneva.

This 10-nation group would take over from the 82-member United Nations disarmament commission — an unwieldy body which has never met.

Canada Leads Fencing

Ike Opens Talks With Mac

WENDOVER, Eng. (AP) — In the serene peace of the English countryside, President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan turned today to a discussion of Western strategy in cold war negotiations with Russia.

The U.S. leader, preparing for his talks next month with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, arrived shortly after midday for a weekend of conferences at Macmillan's secluded country estate, Chequers.

Crowds greeted his return from an overnight respite with the Royal Family in the Scottish Highlands.

Cheers and cries of "I like Ike" echoed as Eisenhower stepped from an RAF Comet jet airliner at Benson air base — a base he knew well from his days as the Allied commander in wartime.

Eisenhower beamed at the cheering crowd.

At the entrance to Chequers a commotion was caused by half a dozen demonstrators of the League of British Empire Loyalists.

RELAXED

Ike appeared relaxed and rested as he left Balmoral Castle accompanied by Prince Philip on the 50-mile drive to Aberdeen's Dyce Airport, where he boarded the Corne.

He bade a warm farewell to the Queen, clasped her hand for several seconds and spoke rapidly to her, thanking her for her hospitality.

The Queen, Princess Margaret and Prince Charles and Princess Anne waved goodbye until the car disappeared from sight.

Before leaving, Eisenhower spent 10 minutes posing with the Royal Family for photographers on the grounds of the 24,000-acre royal estate.

He posed for one shot standing between 10-year-old Prince Charles and nine-year-old Princess Anne.

The president patted Anne's golden curls and asked: "Are you going to learn to cook?"

The princess, wearing the kilt, nodded shyly.

The Queen laughed and said: "I will send you some samples."

"If you don't I will be bombarding you with letters," Eisenhower replied.

Hospitals Going Broke On BCHIS Financing

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The board of directors of 430-bed Royal Columbia Hospital said here today unless the hospital receives more financial aid it will have an operating deficit of $200,000 this year.

Hospital spokesmen said the hospital's financial position is "worse than ever before" and is "reaching the breaking point."

In a statement the board of directors said the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service must provide more financial aid.

Meanwhile, St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver denied a report that it faces serious financial difficulties because it is not receiving enough money from the hospital insurance service.

A Vancouver paper in a front page story today said St. Paul's owes more than $70,000 and cannot borrow money for a new laundry and laboratory because it cannot get a definite commitment from BCHIS.

The Province said a survey of B.C. hospitals showed some were going steadily into debt.

Orders to Shoot At Chinese Reds 'If Necessary'

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Indian cabinet has ordered the army to rush troops into duty along the 1,500-mile northern frontier to prevent further crossing of Communist Chinese troops, it was reported authoritatively today.

Indian troops being rushed to the area have been told to shoot at Chinese soldiers if necessary, it was learned.

The government took the action following reports of large concentrations of Chinese troops along the frontier, stretching from Ladakh to the northeast frontier agency area.

Border police were unable to cope with the Communists, who, it was disclosed in parliament Friday, have clashed with Indian forces in eastern Kashmir and the northeast frontier agency over the past two months.

Red troops have been infiltrating and making probes all along the frontier and it was believed the Communists had placed more than 40,000 troops along the border, compared with a mere 2,000 armed Indian border police.

It was reported in Calcutta that Chinese troops were concentrated along the border of Tibet menacing India, Bhutan and Nepal.

The reports, relayed from Shillong, headquarters for India's northeastern frontier agency, said the area is tense.

Nehru Told Parliament of Clashes

Prime Minister Nehru told a shocked parliament in New Delhi Friday that Chinese soldiers had clashed with Indian troops both in eastern Kashmir and in northeast India in July and August.

Government officials said afterward that as far as was known no Chinese troops were on Indian soil at the moment.

In New Delhi, however, it was reported that the army had received orders to dislodge Chinese troops believed still occupying the Longju border outpost four miles inside India's northeast frontier in the Assam area.

Crack Indian troops trained in jungle and mountain fighting had moved into the region and were within two days march of Longju, the reports said. The Indian force was described as "large," but its exact size was undisclosed.

It was understood Indian military leaders had set up an advance operational command to handle the troop deployment.

Considerable Chinese aerial activity has been noticeable over the border area for the past few days. There were reports the Chinese had dropped bombs.

Oil Firms Support Findings of Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Oil company executives today supported the Borden commission's recommendation against construction of an oil pipeline from the west to Montreal refining centres at this time.

"The pipeline oil cannot compete with oil brought into Montreal by tanker," said Wilburn T. Askew, president of Sun Oil Company Limited.

R. J. Hull, president of Cities Service Oil Company Limited, supported the recommendation that oil companies use Canadian crude in the Ontario market instead of imported crude from Montreal.

"Our spare refining capacity could implement that recommendation," he said.

"Canadian crude can compete in the Ontario market but not in the U.S. market," he said.

CCF Won't 'Water Down' Socialism to Please Labor

WINNIPEG (CP) — CCF Commons Leader Hazen Argue said today he knows of no intention among CCF chiefs to water down their socialist ideas to get support for a new left-of-centre party.

Mr. Argue, who would probably wind up as head of the new party being discussed by the Canadian Labor Congress leadership and the remnants of the CCF, was addressing a political seminar sponsored jointly by the CLC and the CCF.

"No one I know is watering down CCF policy," he said to about 300 delegates.

He added that the CCF is not putting forward the theory of nationalization of industry for nationalization's sake alone but that if it were necessary for the public good, "a larger proportion of monopoly business must be brought under public control."

Mr. Argue said Trans-Canada Air Lines is a good example of the benefits of public ownership.

Discussing the question of farm support for the proposed new party Mr. Argue said:

"I expect that the candidates of the new party will be able to get very considerable support from farmers across Canada. If there were a federal election now, the candidates either of the CCF or the new party would win more support in the four western provinces than all other parties combined."

Talking about suggestions that the congress might be trying to "gobble up" the CCF, Mr. Argue said:

"That's nonsense."

He said he hopes that from the present move for an affiliation between the two bodies there will come "members and at least some of the financial resources" to get labor's message across to the country.

He asked why there have been complaints about the idea of labor members contributing to the financial resources of the proposed new party.

"The back room people for years have been putting money into the other parties."

Joe Armstrong

THE response of the people of this community, among whom no doubt are a number of gentle readers, to the news of Detective Sergeant Armstrong's encounter with the earthquake is really marvelous; it speaks in the most certain of terms the respect and affection in which the police are held hereabouts.

SILENUS

Sergeant Armstrong typifies the police as they really are. Fiction delights in depicting the policeman in a great variety of ways, from classic stupids like Inspector Lestrade to Maigret, Dick Tracy and Harlowe of the Death Squad. Yes, I know, what about Dragnet? Well, what about it? But Joe was none of these curiosities. He is the everyday officer, an underpaid individual who often risks his life in the dull routine of maintaining the Queen's Peace from day to day.

Not that this policeman's life is humdrum. Far from it. Joe Armstrong has been instrumental in cracking some of the most difficult cases which have ever arisen hereabouts; last year's forgery ring involved months of patient investigation, and the assembling of the evidence was a monument to the detective's art.

And our police are denied the freedom

of the sleuths in the comic strips; they seldom get to trap their criminals in burning buildings, throw them out of third-storey windows or have them dragged behind freight trains. They have to bring them before courts of law which are painfully particular about proof; they must make their charges stick.

Gilbert's comic cop, whose lot was not a happy one, is not even a caricature. The policeman's lot is one of hard work, low pay and hours which would make even the IWA gasp with surprise; and there is the ever-present possibility of a knife in the ribs or a shot in the back, to say nothing of lesser injuries which are regarded as commonplace.

The number of ex-policemen hereabouts is astonishing; so is the number of those officers who have grown old in the service from sheer love of it.

Among these is Joe Armstrong of the Saanich Mobile Constabulary, as undaunted as ever despite his crushed bones and his gangrened foot. The response which Chief Pearson has had to his appeal for money for Joe and his family has shown that a good policeman has many friends.

Over the years a great many anti-social persons have tried, in one way or another, to remove the Detective Sergeant from the scene. Their signal lack of success is only pointed up by the failure of a full-blown earthquake to do the job.

Let us keep the pot boiling: many long months of hospital life ahead, and there's a family to feed. A man who can beat earthquakes, landslides and suchlike eruptions deserves a generous hand: in the pocket.

Guinness on His Own

LONDON—Names in the news... Alec Guinness: The critics are trying to sort out why his new film The Scapegoat is not a good one. The feeling is that the fault lies in his switching over from just being an actor to producing and script-writing as well after the fashion of that one-man movie enterprise Charlie Chaplin, who also writes the music.

One critic says of Guinness's latest: "A few words of advice might have stopped him from making a fool of himself in The Scapegoat."

"The film's credit titles tell you it was made by Guinness' own production company. In other words, Guinness was the boss as well as the star and when he bores your ears off there's no one with the power to stop him."

Few critics have found good words to say about this adaptation of the Daphne du Maurier novel, an implausible piece about an English professor who takes on the identity of a no-good French aristocrat. Some filmmakers can fashion a good film out of a poor book—but not the Guinness production company.

'Wait-See' Ottawa's PGE Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials here adopted a wait-and-see attitude toward the British Columbia government's policy of not deducting Canada Savings Bonds premiums from payrolls of provincial civil servants.

It was considered too early to assess the full ramifications of the new policy, outlined in a notice issued in Victoria Friday and signed by Premier Bennett.

The notice said the B.C. government will stop making savings bond payroll deductions in October. Starting in November, civil servants will be able through deductions to buy five-per-cent parity bonds issued by the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway. Ottawa officials had been expecting the B.C. move, described here as "something new and different."

Just how it will affect sales of Canada Savings Bonds in British Columbia as a whole was considered questionable. There was a suggestion that the federal government and the provincial government might end up competing for investment dollars.

An estimated $10,000,000 is said to have been invested by B.C. citizens last year in Canada Savings Bonds.

In Victoria, Friday Premier Bennett asked leading indus-

PWA OPENS NEW ROUTE ON SEPT. 27

CAMPBELL RIVER—Starting Sept. 27, Pacific Western Airlines will make two flights daily between here and Vancouver.

The service comes as a result of building a community airport six miles south of here with funds provided by the village commission and federal transport department.

A 4,000-foot runway has been cleared and graded in the two months the airport has been under construction.

The inaugural flight was made by a PWA DC-3 this week, with chief pilot Jack Crosby and first officer Harry Bray at the controls, and other members of the company and their families as passengers.

They were met by village commission chairman Joe Sundry, airport committee chairman Don Corker, and Don Roper, who was responsible for getting the project under way.

Finest Crop Of Fir Cones Harvested

Finest crop of fir cones seen on Vancouver Island in the past 10 years is now being harvested by pickers, mostly high school students, working under direction of trained supervisors for the B.C. Forest Service.

George Silburn, forester in charge of reforestation, said much of the anticipated 8,000 bushels of cones will come from the 3,000-foot level, and that such seed will be used to replant higher areas on the Island.

High school boys are doing much of the picking because their lighter weight will not damage trees. About 100 are at work now, and at the peak of the season next week there will be 200 on the job.

An example of untrained picking occurred in the Alberni district, where foresters found valuable seed trees in a plantation had been broken, and even chopped down, by independent cone pickers.

Cobble Hill Takes School Overflow

DUNCAN—In order to relieve overcrowding at Bench School, students from part of its attendance area will go to Cobble Hill School in the fall, Cowichan District 65 school board has decided.

Those concerned are pupils of Grades 1 to 5 who live between Tall Timbers Service Station and Wallall Road and those using the Wallall Road bus stop. Parents will be informed individually of the change.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

60-Mile Zones

WEST COAST ADVOCATE — The controversy is still claiming attention regarding the 60 mile speed zones on certain British Columbia roads, with Supt. George Lindsay of the motor vehicle division claiming this rate of speed too great. He also claims that it is increasing the traffic casualties.

If those who favor a slower speed were to take to the highways they would find that the human factor is the largest in all accidents, and that the 60-mile zones do not enter this. They would also find that slow-moving cars often result in those following pulling out to by-pass them and this many times can result in accidents.

Let the pot boil for a while before any change is contemplated. The facts will sift out the causes themselves, but let us not stand still in this age of automobile safety.

Fight Apathy

PARKSVILLE QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS — In a few weeks the multitudes of tourists to the district will have gone for another year. The excitement of summer brought on by active people on holiday, will diminish, and we shall again become a small community thrown upon our own resources. Autumn and winter will be arriving.

With the exception of a small minority of community-minded citizens, the district will, once again, become wrapped in a cloak of stagnancy.

Bus Driver Fined $25 For 'Ditching' Cars

(From Duncan Bureau)

Victoria bus driver Eric Shaw Dankin was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate A. C. Sutton here on a charge of interfering with the safe operation of other vehicles.

Dakin, a Vancouver Island Coach Lines part-time driver, was charged after two autos and an RCMP patrol car driven by RCMP Cpl. Max Hockstetter were forced onto the gravel shoulder of the road. The incident happened July 24, north of Chemainus River bridge.

Lloyd McKenzie, defence counsel questioned two bus passengers, Andrew John Montador and Alec Holloway, both of Victoria. They testified a car had raced the bus when Dankin tried to pass, then slowed down when Dankin tried to return to the right lane behind the vehicle.

TRIED TO PASS — The bus driver told the court he had tried to pass and had failed over a clear one-half mile stretch of road. Dankin said he was forced to enter the curve in the left lane when he met three on-

When asked why he had not stopped 200 yards from the curve, Dankin testified he would have been on the wrong side of the road "without power."

Cpl. Hockstetter testified Dankin had told him on the scene that the driver in front of the bus, Mrs. Verna Daley, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, had signalled the bus to pass.

Mrs. Daley denied this statement before the bus driver, Cpl. Hockstetter said.

Fishboat Rescued By Nanaimo Tug — Air-Sea Rescue officials in Vancouver reported today a fishing boat, the B-For-Bon, was pulled off the rocks in Ruxton Pass early today by the Nanaimo tug Beaver.

The fishing boat went aground Friday night, 20 miles southeast of Nanaimo.

Search and rescue officials said the boat apparently was not seriously damaged, and that no one was injured.

Indian security forces in Calcutta today tightened their watch on the city's two Chinatown which comprise the largest Chinese population anywhere in India.

The newspaper Hindustan Standard reported that the Chinese troops were equipped with modern weapons.

"The situation is fast developing into an explosive one," it said.

Unconfirmed reports said some Tibetan refugees who had been used for building Indian roads in the wild north-eastern frontier agency this summer had disappeared.

The reports said it now appeared they actually were Communist spies who mixed with bona fide refugees during the flight from Communist oppression in Tibet last spring.

Montreal area. Mr. Askew felt it was possible for Canadian companies to follow the Borden recommendation, to try to develop United States markets. Mr. Hui, however, said he could see no immediate increase of exports to the U.S. He cited such factors as oil tanker costs.

"But the world situation can change and give us more opportunity," he said.

Frank McMahon, president of Westcoast Company Limited, said:

"We may have to buy oil from the Middle East and Latin America in Montreal, but we can sell it to the west coast and middle west of the U.S."

Royal Jubilee Hospital officials were not available today for comment on the reported deficits.
